OUR 72ND YEAR, NO. 26 — October 2, 1986

Fiesta time

MONSIGNOR E. MacMahon, pastor of the Carmel Mission, officially opens the Fiesta San Carlos de Borromeo (Mission Fiesta) Sept. 28 following Mass in the basilica and a procession to the courtyard. Hundreds of people packed the courtyard at the mission on a warm sunny day, enjoying live entertainment, a variety of games, food ranging from tacos and burritos to hot dogs and cotton candy, and sampling the wares offered by more than 70 local artisans. The main culinary attraction was a chicken barbecue, which had the volunteer cooks going well into the afternoon. The annual event has been held at the mission since the 1920s. CUSD teachers, board reach contract agreement

By DAVID LELAND

BOTH CARMEL'S teachers and school board this week ratified a $300,000-plus, collective bargaining agreement for the 1986-87 school year.

The new contract offers a higher salary base for teachers, rewarding those with more than 11 years in the Carmel Unified School District, and sets up a program in which teachers work with their peers in improving sub-par performance.

'I feel it's a positive move. We've changed the format, it's an equitable, fair approach to the distribution of money.'

Teacher Jim Agan

"I feel it's a positive move," said Jim Agan, lead negotiator for Association of Carmel Teachers. "We've changed the format, it's an equitable, fair approach to the distribution of money."

This year a beginning CUSD teacher would make $18,500, a raise of $2,480 over last year, with the top salary range being $34,600, or $2,255 more than the 1985-86 school year. In order to step into the top salary slot, the contract stipulates a teacher also must have a master's degree and 60 units of graduate study.

In addition, the agreement provides "career incentives" to teachers with 16 years or more, according to Bob Infelise, superintendent of CUSD.

"It makes sense to reward people who have served the district," he said.

After completing 16 years with the district a teacher could earn $33,250; with 21 years $34,900; and in 26 years they could be making $35,600.

"This is the best salary agreement the teachers and the district have had in recent years," Infelise said.

The ACT ratified the agreement Monday 63-4, while the school board unanimously approved the deal late Tuesday afternoon.

Approximately 113 teachers will be affected by the contract, Agan said. But not all of these are full-time teachers. This number also includes special education and part-time educators.

Agan said the pay raise will be made retroactive to July (the beginning of the fiscal year), but the raise will only affect the teacher's paycheck for September. They are not paid during the summer break.

The contract will only stand for this school year. The district has a policy of only signing one-year contracts with the teachers. Infelise added that this year's budget, which has been termed "healthy" by the school board, can "support" the new contract.

"The district has always been reluctant (for more than a one-year contract) because of unsure financing from the state," Agan said.

For this reason Agan said the teachers do not push the board for multi-year deals.

Infelise said the "most significant" adjustment in the relationship between the district and the teachers is a program called Peer Assistance.

In this program, Infelise said, a teacher who has been identified as having a problem would be assisted by a member of the ACT in working with the teacher to help improve his performance.

The ACT sees this program as a "positive" step in working with teachers who have been labled in a negative way, Agan said.

"We can work alongside when it is needed," he said. But, he added, he hoped this would not be often.

'This is the best salary agreement the teachers and the district have had in recent years.'

School Supt. Bob Infelise

Constitution Day

Dear Editor:

The 199th anniversary of the drafting of the Constitution of the United States was September 17 of this year.

It is not too early at this time to remember that one year from that day at 4 p.m. (EDT) — the exact hour of the completion of the then-legislators' work — the entire nation celebrated this historic occasion, so important for each U.S. citizen. Let's mentally prepare for the day of September 1987.

William Ewart Gladstone, the famous British statesman, sent a letter July 20, 1887 to the committee in charge of the Centennial Anniversary of the American Constitution. He wrote: "I have always regarded the U.S. Constitution as the most remarkable work known to me in modern times to have been produced by the human intellect, at a single stroke in its application to political affairs." Gladstone compares our constitution with the unwritten British one in the North American Review (September 1878): "The British (unwritten) Constitution is a subtle organism which has proceeded from progressive history, while the American one struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man (and woman)."

What is the real meaning of the American Constitution? This is the question which millions of Americans and people all over the world will try to answer in the following 365 days.

The answers will be different but all of them will without any doubt recognize that our Constitution is the oldest written national instrument of government anywhere in the world.

The Constitution of Athens, a work attributed to the philosopher Aristotle (384-322 BC) formed only one of a series of Constitutions (politeiai; 158 in number).

It treated of the institutions of the various states in the Greek world, and cannot be compared with the content of the Constitution of the United States, which recognizes the people as the ultimate source of power. Even in the time of the Roman Empire the word "constitutio" signified only a collection of laws or ordinances made by the emperor and not by the people.

It is uncommon — constitutionalists say — to misinterpret the rigidity of the U.S. Constitution, from a regard rather to the theory which its text suggests that to the practical working. The letter of the Constitution has to some extent been modified in various judicial interpretations (C.G. Tiedeman). Notwithstanding the U.S. Constitution has been less susceptible of development than the unwritten English.

The very last and ultramodern interpretation of our Constitution — a welcome present to the 200th anniversary — was written by Michael Kammen, a Cornell historian. He stated that a glaring discrepancy exists between the recurrent declaration of reverance for our "Arc of Covenant" and the ongoing reality of failing to understand the Constitution. Kammen hits also symbolic commemorative occasions because the reality of political conflicts should elicit more interest in the interpretation of our Constitution. It is not our scope to interpret it but evoke some thinking and mental preparedness for the big day.

A lawless act

Dear Editor:

. At the behest of the president, Congress has voted $100 million dollars in aid to the Contras. This is a lawless act and our democracy is in grave danger when both the executive and the legislative branches of government feel free to break laws. They have violated the Nuremberg principles, the United Nations Charter and the Treaty of the Organization of American States in so doing.

At the Nuremberg trial Justice Robert Jackson of the U.S. Supreme court said that if certain acts and violations of treaties are crimes, that it makes no difference if they are done by the United States or Germany. He also said that we are not laying down a rule of criminal conduct against others which we would not be willing to have invoked against us.

The lawlessness was possible because of the craven unanimity of television and newspapers. Outside of a rare story regarding Contra drug-running, story after story reflected the administration's viewpoint. The result was that most people were uninformed and, therefore, unable to influence legislators.

If ordinary citizens can do sufficient research to become aware of U.S. violations of law, surely a substantial number of journalists in a society with a free press, should concern themselves with an issue so central to us all.

Prostitution of art

Dear Editor:

The creation of "fine art" is a very personal statement. It is a product of the artist's mind and imagination, a contract between the artist and his medium, created with integrity. Fine art is valuable for historical, scientific and cultural reasons; and, it benefits mankind with unique knowledge. The "masters of art" by their determination to enrich the human soul, strive against routine.

With these concepts as a premise for artistic creation, why do some artists in Carmel continue to create insignificant handicrafts to be sold as original works of fine art? Why do they duplicate, rather than create, by repainting similar scenes over and over, merely making the Lone Cypress tree taller, the wave bluer, or the duck an otter? This repetition contributes to the deterioration of fine art in our community.

Carmel has a history of being an "Artist's Colony." Are these so-called world-famous artists selling themselves out for profit? Is their desire to create an item of importance, with integrity, over-shadowed by dealers' dreams of fortune? Is Carmel to become a haven of artists and dealers who pride themselves in quantity rather than quality?

The integrity of an artist is protected by law. When dealers violate this integrity, art is lowered to the level of prostitution. Furthermore, sales of multiple original oils as "one-of-a-kind" investments is against the law. Those who misrepresent such art must be prosecuted. When collectors of fine art become aware of this deception, the prestige of artists and galleries in Carmel will be destroyed.

These issues have been raised at city council meetings, to the licensing review board and to the newspapers. As a collector of fine art, I wish to protest the policies of this city, its artists and the dealers. By allowing this fraud to continue you are endorsing it. I ask you: Are you ignorant of the law, or do you wish to ignore it?

Clarification needed

Dear Editor:

I thank your new journalist for the article on drug education in the Carmel Schools. Several areas need clarification, however.

Carmel's schools have been very active in supporting drug and alcohol abuse education. Not mentioned in the ardsticle was the fact that Carmel Middle School has had for six years an intensive program in the sixth- and seventh-grade health class drawing on resources from drug and family agencies, pharmacologists, and drug experts. The sixth-graders each year also have had an "alcohol awareness" week taught by Junior League volunteers.

At the high school, We Care staged an all-day Awareness Day which used over 50 community resources and has served as a model for similar programs in other schools.

Another error: the Carmel High School Peer Counselors, with students from Robert Louis Stevenson, started the Saferides Program. While I have served on its steering committee since its inception, it is Dee Meyer to whom all credit should go for the organization and success of Saferides.

The article implied that the teachers were denying the scope of the problem. There certainly has been denial or, rather, ignorance about the scope of the drug and alcohol problems among our youth by the community in the past, but not by the teachers who work with it and observe the effects daily. The reasons for not enthusiastically embracing the "Here's Looking at You" program were essentially financial. It remains true, however, that a new curriculum, even with the best materials, is only as good as the teachers. With full school support, this kind of program could only help our other efforts.

Music to his ears

Dear Editor:

As the new band director at Carmel High, I am delighted to be the recipient of the warmth, encouragement and support that Carmel and Monterey have bestowed upon me. The associations that I have encountered from the Frohman Academy, the Monterey Jazz Festival Committee, the Carmel Unified School District, the Sunset Center, KRML (AM 1410), Prelude magazine and The Pine Cone have, up to this point, been rather awesome and surprising.

I have been the music instructor at Carmel High since the beginning of this school year. I'm from the Los Angeles area and was hired to build, strengthen and maintain the instrumental program.

I am blessed with a Band Booster Club, headed by Sharen Carey, whose enthusiasm and foresight formed this organization even before my being hired. They represent the community's desire and wisdom to acknowledge the importance and advantages that musical training and discipline offers. It is this type of training that will aid in maturing our children into competent students and musicians.

The superintendent, principal, vice principal, the counselors and teachers, represent a pillar of potential strength in aiding in the growth of the fine arts program in our schools.

You, the community, together with the communication media, have demonstrated the desire to support this "New Beginning" music program. To be successful, we require your recognition, your attention and your positive attitude.

The elementary schools feed the junior highs who in turn feed the high schools, whose goal is to feed the colleges. The colleges ultimately feed the world. This chain of intellectual growth certainly reflects on you, the community, whose belief in our children is an investment that will pay off with incredible productivity.

Thank you, Carmel and Monterey, and I might add that your children also thank you.

Reasonable balance

Dear Editor:

The orchestrated letter campaign to the Pine Cone tries to give the impression that the city council, the planning commission and the general plan committee are trying to undo the noble work of their predecessors. We have attended all but one of the open general plan committee's many meetings and have observed that all it is trying to undo are the excesses of the former administration.

The fact is that the Eastwood appointees, with the help of our able city planning staff, are working long hours to achieve a reasonable balance of interest in our town. They want the Carmel general plan to be constructive and the ordinances that arise from it to be fair and to accomplish their purpose. One example: The ordinance previously proposed to legalize second kitchens was so punitive that very few of them would probably have surfaced. They are trying to remedy that situation.

Another example: the original R-4 concept of an area where small apartments and businesses to serve them would be encouraged has been blocked by strangling restrictions. They are trying to remedy that.

Everyone in the Eastwood administration is working to move water, parking and library problems toward practical solutions with a momentum that was lost before. Hopefully their hard work, sparked by an overwhelming election victory, will be accomplished. Actually they have only been in office a short time. We should support them.

Unfortunate conflict

Dear Editor:

The members of our concert association select a dance attraction high on their list of concerts that they want us to book. We were able to fulfill their request this year with the Boomer Dance Theater from San Francisco. They were able to come in October. Upon seeing in an arts magazine in April that we had scheduled them to come on the same date that the Carmel Dance Series had booked a ballet on their offerings, I called Richard Tyler and offered to change our date with the Boomer Dance Theater to October 25.

Mr. Tyler replied, "Oh, there is no conflict." The ballet group could not come on the 18th and so they would be coming on Oct. 25.

When I read in the local daily on Sept. 3 that the Carmel Dance Series had a cancellation of the Oct. 25 ballet and had booked the Oberlin Dance Company from San Francisco on Oct. 18 I was stunned. Besides being on the same night as our concert, it is also a modern dance company.

I called Mr. Tyler and asked why he booked them on the 18th. His reply was, "I called all over the United States to replace the other dance group and the only one available was the Oberlin and they could only come on the 18th."

It is very unfortunate. We try to avoid such conflicts. And, we get so few dance groups that are not ballet. We are sorry.

Planners say no EIR for McFarland seawall

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission decided not to require an environmental impact report before repairs start on a privately-owned fiberform seawall along the bluffs of north Carmel Beach at Pescadero Creek.

After listening to three hours of tapes from previous planning commission and city council meetings, the commission Sept. 24 voted 4-2 [illegible] require peninsula developer Craig McFarland to prepare an EIR before placing 2-to-3-ton rocks — loose rip-rap — at the base of the northernmost Carmel seacliff. The rock is to shore up a defective foundation under a cement-filled bag seawall below McFarland's home.

The action overturned the previous planning commission's decision made October 1985 for preparation of an EIR prior to use of the rip-rap.

Chairman Ken White and Commissioner Carla Ramsey voted against dropping the EIR with commissioners Olof Dahlstrand, Fred Keeble, Ed Hicks and Bruce Roberts voting in favor of the move. Commissioner Bill Brown was absent.

Dahlstrand, Keeble, Roberts and Hicks all objected to the wall as it now stands, but felt that it was there, would not be torn down, needed repairs to the foundation and therefore, an EIR would produce nothing of value.

White and Ramsey decided there was "sufficient doubt" about the consequences of the planned repairs to mandate an EIR after listening to testimony from Jean Grace, a coastal geographer and chairwoman of the Beach Task Force, and resident Virginia Atkinson about the possible effects of the loose rip-rap on wave action and neighboring cliffs.

Members of the community will have 30 days to respond to the commission's action and send to the Carmel Planning Department written comments for or against conducting an EIR on the seawall repairs.

REPAIRS TO defective foundation under Craig McFarland's seawall along northern Carmel beach will not need an EIR, the Carmel Planning Commission decided Sept. 24. McFarland had appealed the decision of the former planning commission to require an EIR before rip-rap was installed to stabilize the wall.

The planning commission will review the comments in a future meeting, after which it can reconfirm or reverse its decision. Comments should be addressed to Carmel Planning Department.

THE WALL has been subject to controversy since it was built after the storms of 1982-1983 severely eroded the cliffs along Carmel Beach, including those below McFarland's currently unoccupied home.

The wall was authorized by the California Coastal Commission in a combined emergency permit for the City of Carmel and McFarland to save their respective properties. A condition of the permit was it would be followed by complete geotechnical, engineering and aesthetic improvement plans.

The legality of that permit also was a source of controversy about two years ago when it was found the city had never issued the wall a permit of its own.

McFarland hired Bestor Engineers, which designed a wall of stacked colored cement-filled bags held together with reinforcing steel rods to protect the remaining cliffs.

When the geotechnical report was prepared by soil and foundation consultants M. Jacobs and Associates, it was found that the northernmost 80 feet of the 220-foot wall was resting on an unstable foundation of sand and gravel rather than bedrock the like rest of the structure.

According to Carl Hooper of Bestor Engineers, various methods to stabilize the foundation were investigated, including pressure grouting and digging down to the bedrock, but these remedies were found to be unfeasible. Hooper told the commission the pressure grouting expert said he could not guarantee his work under the conditions present at the site and the bedrock is too far down to use as a foundation.

Hooper suggested a trench be dug along the wall, filled with the rock so the stones would press against the sand foundation to hold it in place. They would also cover the lower portion of that section of the wall.

One of the side effects of this approach, according to the staff report to the commission, based on a report by Rogers Johnson, is that "as the armor rock settles into place over time, it will have tendency to creep forward" — toward the ocean. How far it will move, the report states, is unknown, but it is "reasonable to assume that the rock will migrate seaward approximately two to three feet for every foot of vertical elevation change due to settling." That movement would also mean that rock would have to be added occasionally. Also, the report stated, the piled rock would result in "a permanent loss of a portion of beachland."

The planning commission in October 1985, when the application on the foundation repairs was first reviewed, decided that the effect of the migrating rip-rap and proximity of Pescadero Creek posed enough questions about the environmental repercussions that an EIR was necessary.

McFarland appealed the action to the city council in December 1985, but the council upheld the commission's decision. McFarland again appealed the decision, this time to the new council, this past August. The council remanded the application back to the current planning commission.

Council to tackle everything from parking to housing

By DAVID LELAND

A MYRIAD of issues are scheduled for the Carmel City Council's Oct. 7 meeting. These will range from parking and senior citizen housing to a council resolution opposing state Proposition 61 on November's ballot, which could cost Carmel a bundle.

Leading off the agenda, at the 4 p.m. meeting next Tuesday at the Carmel Woman's Club, San Carlos Street and Ninth Avenue, will be a report from the Beach Task Force.

The task force has been working for the past two months trying to restore between 60 and 70 parking places which would have been "lost" in an architect's plan for a Carmel Beach walkway.

Don't count on that number of spaces being being "found" by the committee, but, according to Jean Grace, task force chairperson, there have been a number of alternatives discussed, which will restore at least some parking places on Scenic Road.

Essentially, Grace said, the task force has looked at three different methods of establishing more parking spaces in the impacted area, which would, for example, remove 46 spaces between Eighth and Tenth avenues alone.

The first procedure involves moving the parking places closer together. Currently the spaces are at least four feet apart. The spaces were set up this way so the ocean view would not be obstructed to people driving by. But this option, Grace said, would only add about "six or seven" places.

The second option would eliminate some of the proposed landscaping between the walkway and the road itself. This would provide addtional width for parking spaces.

The third consideration, the task force has suggested, is to move the path toward the bluff — but this would mean a 42-inch high guardrail on the walkway for safety, as stated by law. The city has tried to avoid the guardrail, as it obstructs the view, which has been a major concern of the Scenic Road property owners.

"It's a compromise matter no matter how you do it," Grace said.

Grace said the task force will have its final meeting before the Oct. 7 city council gathering tonight (Thursday, Oct. 2) at 7:30 in the city council chambers on Monte Verde Street.

"We will try to present (the council on Oct. 7) an option that will be a satisfying compromise for everyone involved," she said.

AT ITS Oct. 7 meeting the city council will also:

• Hear a discussion of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

This item was scheduled for the special council meeting on Sept. 22 and was held over because the EIR had not been forwarded from the consultant in San Francisco. It is doubtful whether this matter will make it on the Oct. 7 agenda either.

• Consider a request from the Holman Highway Task Force, which asks for the city to contribute $10,000 towards participation in the Phase II Task Force Program.

• Consider how council wants to allocate responsibility concerning several matters of policy such as display of outdoor merchandise and transient units.

• Receive a status report and recommendations from the general plan committee. The committee is expected to submit a revised housing element to the council. It also, according to Bob Evans, general plan chairman, will submit a resolution which would legalize subordinate units (second kitchens). The resolution would make existing subordinate housing units legal, he said. If approved, the general plan commission's recommendations will be forwarded to the planning commission for further study.

• Receive a report from the Carmel Foundation concerning the Dolores Street Housing Project.

• Adopt a resolution opposing Proposition 61 as requested from the city's employee associations.

Proposition 61 would cap city salaries of elected and appointed officials at $64,000, said Doug Schmitz, city administrator. If a person had a salary over that their salary would be rolled back.

Also, employees would not be able to accrue sick time or vacation days unused within a 12-month period.

Schmitz said the immediate cost to the state, if this became law, would be $7 billion. Carmel's tab would be $550,000 to buy out its employees accumulated time off and sick leave.

In addition to this, Schmitz said, the bill puts a cap on how much government agencies can spend on private contractors. A maximum of $75 an hour could be spent to hire outside contractors if the proposition becomes law.

City officials said it would be unfeasible for cities to contract services for this amount. What this would more than likely do is halt much-needed repairs and delay new projects.

THE CITY has been trying to obtain the best of both worlds on Scenic Drive by having adequate parking as well as an unobstructed view of Carmel Bay. The Beach Task Force will present its findings on the feasibility of this objective to the Carmel City Council at its Oct. 7 meeting. (Holly McFarland photo.)

• Consider a resolution authorizing the mayor to enter into an agreement with architects and the Pine Inn concerning the proposed underground parking garage at Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street. The proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex will be housed on top of the underground garage.

• The council will also hear a second reading on three city ordinances. If approved on second reading, the ordinances become law.

The proposed ordinances are: moving the city council tour of inspection from noon to 10 a.m., amending residential parking permits and the formation of a recreation commission.

Applications are currently available for the recreation commission at city hall. Three applications have already been filed, said Jeanne Brehmer, city clerk.

News notes:

Recovery Center to get $100,000 donation from mayor

By DAVID LELAND

COME THE first of the year, a peninsula drug and alcohol recovery center will be at least $100,000 richer, thanks to a donation by Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood.

Last weekend (Sept. 26 and 27) Eastwood filmed a Variety Clubs International television special to raise money for charitable causes to be aired on CBS-TV this December.

Eastwood will donate his earnings from the special to the Recovery Center, a drug and alcohol recovery center at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. It was not certain what the amount would be, but Eastwood said it would "exceed $100,000."

"It's one of the less glamorous aspects of the hospital," Eastwood told The Pine Cone. "It's an area that is getting a lot of attention [illegible] about it.

"We are pleased and delighted that Mr. Eastwood has directed this important gift to our Recovery Center," said Gary Cooke, hospital public information and development officer. "The disease of drug addiction is taking a great toll on our community, just as it is on other communities."

"The Variety Clubs International is a group that was formed in the 1920s over concerns with the problems of children," said Sue Hutchinson, aide to the mayor. "Now they are concerned with drugs."

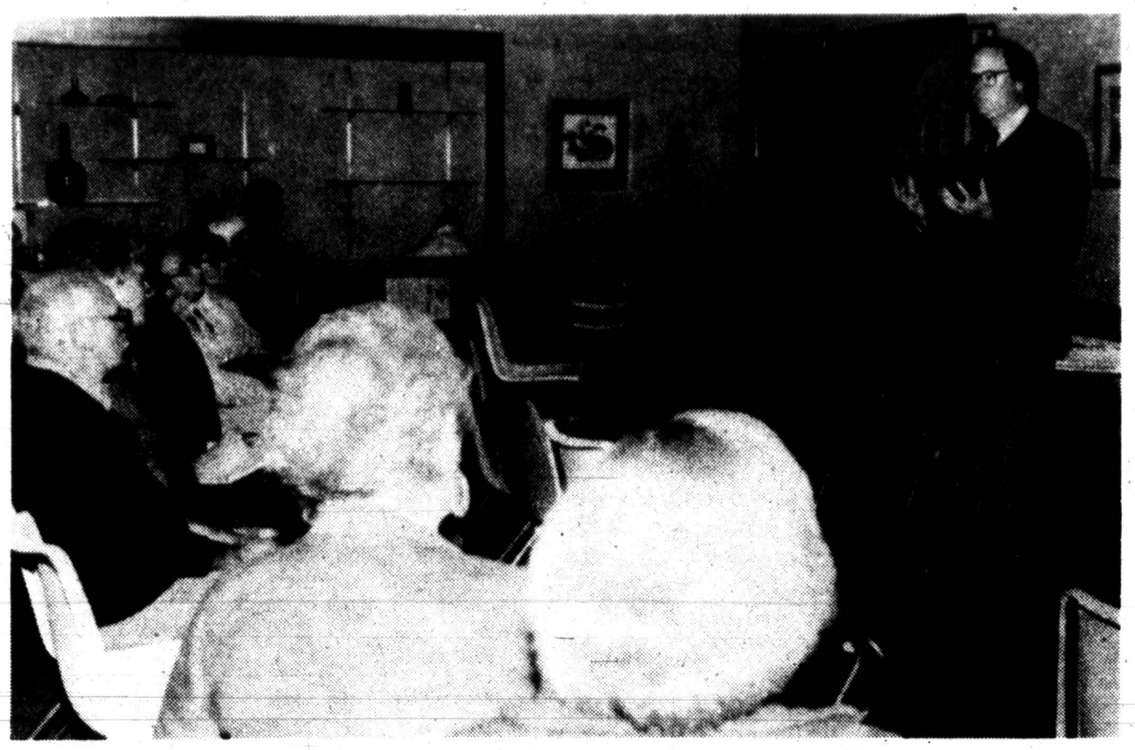
The first time the club aired a televison show to gain donations was in 1976, when the late John Wayne was honored. His donation went to a children's hospital in Miami, Hutchinson said.

Proceeds from the show will be at least $100,000, Hutchinson said, and probably more after more people decide to donate money to the cause.

The program, which each year features luminaries such as Wayne, Liz Taylor, Frank Sinatra, and last year, President Reagan, will be produced by Mike Frankovich. Frankovich is known for his productions of Bridge On The River Kwai and Oliver.

Huthchinson said the show will consist of appearances by friends of Eastwood, such as Bob Hope and Sammy Davis Jr., plus films clips of Eastwood's film work.

"We appreciate the efforts of Clint Eastwood and the Variety Clubs International to help combat this disease," Cooke said. "It's especially helpful to have the support of someone of his stature."



Big Sur highway project delayed

CALTRANS WILL delay construction of a portion of a rehabilitation project on Highway 1 in the Big Sur area, according to Caltrans Public Affairs Officer Eddie Devens.

The portion being delayed is from Captain Cooper School south to the new Juan Higuera Creek Bridge, a distance of 1.3 miles. Work is proceeding on the 5.5-mile section north of Captain Cooper School. This 5.5-mile section will require no tree removal.

Caltrans District 5 will work with the community of Big Sur and the county in the next few months regarding the proposed rehabilitation work for the 1.3 miles of highway south of Captain Cooper School.

This action is in response to concern expressed by Rep. Leon Panetta, Assemblyman Sam Farr, Assemblyman Eric Seastrand, Monterey County Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman and residents of the Big Sur community.

Town hall talk

ASSEMBLYMAN SAM Farr of Carmel spoke to constituents of his district during a "town hall" meeting at Sunset Center Monday. Farr's "state of the state" talk and question-and-answer session following it addressed subjects as diverse as the Hatton Canyon Freeway and the proposed new San Clemente Dam to oversized tires on pickup trucks and state tax reform. The lengthiest discussion centered on the Hatton Canyon Freeway, which Farr supports, but doubts that Caltrans can keep to its schedule of getting it started by 1991 ("We're lucky if we meet that schedule"). Farr has held several town hall meetings on the peninsula the past week. About two dozen people showed up for the Carmel session. (Holly McFarland photo.)

College/career center schedules 'college talks'

THE COLLEGE/Career Center at Carmel High School has scheduled "college talks," information on various colleges, through December at the center.

The center, which aids students and parents in the college application process, is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and is staffed by trained volunteers.

Parents are invited to attend these talks or to drop by and discuss their child's college/career plans. The following "college talks" are scheduled (all times are in the morning):

Pomona College, 8:15 and College of Idaho, 8:30 Monday, Sept. 22; University of the Pacific, 10:15 Tues, Sept. 23; Claremont McKenna, 8:30 Friday, Sept. 26; California Maritime Academy, 9 Wednesday, Oct. 8; Menlo College, 8:10 Thursday, Oct. 9; Oregon State University, 10 Thursday, Oct. 16; Wellsley College, 8 Tuesday, Oct. 21; University of Southern California, 11:30 Tuesday, Oct. 28.

McFarland seawall won't require EIR by planners

attorney Myron Etienne, representing McFarland, said that since the present design of the wall was already in place and would not be torn down, the rip-rap was the only means of repairing the foundation — a necessary step. The loss of beachland, he added, would be mitigated by McFarland giving the city the privately-owned portion of beach in front of his home. An EIR simply would not reveal anything new, Etienne said. He added that McFarland would cooperate with aesthetic improvements the city mandated, so that was not an issue.

Hooper added most of the rocks would not be visible because they would be buried in the sand and their forward movement would not be substantial.

•

ADVOCATING THE EIR during the meeting, Grace told the commission last week that "impacts are already being seen from the present wall," that the rock is "purely and simply loose rip-rap" and of a size "which has been known to be thrown over seawalls" by heavy surf.

Additionally, "as the rock creeps out — and there is no doubt it will creep out — it will form a peninsula," she said

When the waves strike the peninsula, energy at the end of the wave will intensify, like a whiplash, as it sweeps into the bluffs south of the wall. This will excaberate the erosion process.

Atkinson, also a member of the Beach Task Force but speaking as a resident, asked if anyone had addressed the question of whether the rock would change Pescadero Creek's outflow enough that it would undermine the Pebble Beach golf course's 10th green, which is the McFarland home's northern neighbor.

However, Roberts stated that he felt all the factors had been "mitigated" in the staff reports and, as public controversy is a factor in determining whether an EIR should be mandated, he felt that the one person showing up to protest the rip-rap in the 1985 city council meeting and the two or three that showed at this meeting did not constitute a major controversy.

Refering to Grace's testimony, Dahlstrand said he felt she had made some "interesting points," but the bluffs were primarily rock and he did not feel an EIR would reveal anything new.

"The issue here is the wall is in place and will probably collapse. This is a tough problem, and I don't see any way to mitigate that. If this was being built from scratch, I can think of a lot better approaches," he said.

Hicks and Keeble agreed, though Keeble questioned the stability of the rip-rap base. He asked Planning Director Diane White if they could oversee the actual repair plans during the design review process. When she answered affirmative, he decided to vote against requiring the EIR.

Hicks, before he voted, said he was "concerned about the feeling in the community" that the vote would denote city approval of the existing wall, which it was not at all. He said that he felt that there just were no other alternatives.

Highway 1 widening to be discussed

CALTRANS WILL be holding an informational meeting Oct. 2 to determine residents' feelings on widening of a portion of Highway 1 in Big Sur.

The meeting will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 2 at the Big Sur Grange Hall in Big Sur.

Caltrans is proposing to "rehabilitate" and widen 1.25 miles of Highway 1 in Big Sur just north of Juan Higuera Creek Bridge to about three-quarters of a mile north of Captain Cooper School Road.

If you are unable to attend the meeting, which will feature Caltrans and local government officials and citizen groups, you may send written comments to: Caltrans, PO Box 8114, San Luis Obispo, Calif. 93403-8114.

For more information on this project call Caltrans at (805) 549-3393.

Business may pick up for planning commission

By NANCY HILLS

BUSINESS FOR the Carmel Planning Commission may pick up soon.

Since the Carmel City Council determined that permits which affect water use should be processed, even if they have to be conditioned so that the business cannot open or a building permit issued until Carmel's water consumption goes down, the planning commission may have more customers. The city council approved an urgency water ordinance because Carmel had used 99.99 percent of its Monterey Peninsula Water Management District-allocated water supply.

On the agenda for the commission's Wednesday, Oct. 8 meeting are:

• An application by Michael Lajigian, owner of Chocolate Dreams on Ocean Avenue, to serve gelato. Lajigian has been attempting since last year to obtain a permit to sell and serve the Italian ice cream in the candy store.

The application is the first to be reviewed under the new frozen desert ordinance, which specifically allows ice cream cones.

Lajigian's application states he will provide seating and has offered to use bottled water to offset the increased water use accompanying the serving of food.

However, under the urgency ordinance provisions, his application, if approved, would have to be conditioned to become effective when the moratorium is lifted.

• A request by Richard Pepe, owner of Wishart's Bakery on Ocean Avenue, for the planning commission to determine if selling pizza slices is within the definition of a bakery.

• A re-application by George and Mary Kew for a lot line adjustment on the northeast corner of Guadalupe and Fourth. The adjustment would require the removal of a porch from one of the oldest homes in Carmel. The porch would have to be removed for the home to meet with lot site coverage codes. The Victorian home now sits on two lots and the adjustment would put it on one.

The adjustment had been denied last year by the planning commission after the application was contested both by letters and personal appearances by neighbors.

• A permit by Agnes Gump for a new single-family residence on West Torres Street between Eighth and Ninth avenues. The home will also come under the new water connection moratorium.

You Can't Beat the System.

CARMEL HIGH School's new junior and senior class counselor, Mike Gunderson, has undertaken the task of meeting with more than 200 graduating seniors before Christmas in order to write letters of recommendation to their prospective colleges.

Carmel High counselor has found a home in CUSD

By DAVID LELAND

ONE CAN'T be any more satisfied with a job than Mike Gunderson, the newly-hired 11th- and 12th-grade counselor at Carmel High School. In fact, Gunderson says he has thrown away his resume; he won't be needing it anymore — he's found a home.

Gunderson's office has a dishevelled, lived-in look after only a month on the job. A photograph of the Three Stooges, Larry, Moe and Curly Joe, is pinned to the wall facing Gunderson as if to say "how can a man who is doing such a serious job be having so much fun.?"

"I left a good job and came to a great job," said the counselor while explaining his good spirits.

But Gunderson's immediate task is formidable. With more than half of the 400 pupils in his charge being seniors, he feels a sense of immediacy to talk with each prospective graduate before Christmas vacation.

"I have to start writing letters of recommendation to different colleges after Christmas," he said. Gunderson said he wants to know each student so he can write an accurate letter to his prospective school.

Except for one period, where Gunderson catches up on paperwork, the rest of the schoolday is filled talking with youngsters about grades, college and, if they are not college bound, what direction the student wishes to take.

Gunderson may be new to Carmel, but he is not new to school counseling, having spent the past four years counseling at North Monterey High School.

"When I began in that school I recognized the need for college placement," he said. "The first year only seven students went on to college." Within a short time more than 60 students were destined for higher education.

In 1984 North Monterey High School was awarded the National Award for Excellence, which was presented to them in Washington, D.C.

But when the opportunity came to move to Carmel and participate in Carmel High School's counseling program Gunderson jumped at the chance.

"Right now I'm doing all the things that I loved doing and none of the things that I hated doing," he said.

Gunderson said he has been extremely impressed with the involvement and interest in the school by Carmel residents.

"People in the community have been incredibly welcoming," he said. "Parents take time to come in and see me to talk about their kids."

Gunderson was quick to point out that youngsters did not have to be college-bound to see a counseler. "If they have a problem, they should come and see me," he said.

"My emphasis is to guide the kids," he said. "I want to help the kids get through high school and get someplace."

For Gunderson providing this help includes getting to work at 7:30 a.m. and staying until after dark to be available for consultation with his students.

"My interest is getting the kids to be successful and happy at Carmel High School," he said.

THE ROAD to his current job began when Gunderson was teaching visual arts in Southern California after graduating from Cal State Stanislaus.

"I was getting really involved with the kids," he said. "I knew I needed to go to school to become a counselor."

Gunderson went back to school, attending Irvine and Fullerton state universities. He graduated with a master's degree in education.

Gunderson believes this is a great time to be working in his field, with high schools putting counseling as a priority. He said the current trend is reminiscent of the 1960s.

"When I was in high school we had five or six counselors," he said. "There was one guy that I heard was good but I didn't have him."

Gunderson said he doesn't want any of Carmel High's students to be short-changed by lack of good counseling — he wants to be available for kids and be "good" for them.

Gunderson's integrity is already admired by the other counselors at Carmel High School.

"Mike is dedicated, high energy and stimulating to work with," said Louis Tanous, a longtime couselor at Carmel High. "He moved into the job like he'd been there his whole life."

Meanwhile, Gunderson has settled into life on the peninsula. His son, Matthew, attends kindergarten at Carmel River School. And, while currently a single parent, Gunderson plans to marry this November. His fiance is also a school counselor.

"I love working with him," Tanous said. "His caring spills out all over the place. He's got a sense of humor that won't stop."

Gunderson said when he planned on moving to Carmel he was told by fellow workers that residents would have their noses "up in the air," but this has proved incorrect.

"It's been just the opposite," he said.

FOCUS prepares for first fundraiser of school year

By MAC McDONALD

CARMEL AREA schools have a new "benefactor" in the California Lottery, but they have a true friend right here at home: Friends of the Carmel Unified Schools, better known as FOCUS.

FOCUS managed to raise more than $70,000 last year alone, making it their most successful year yet in their brief seven-year existence. The lottery may generate more money for the Carmel Unified School District, but only a portion of the total amount (approximately one-third) collected by the lottery goes to schools. In contrast every cent raised by FOCUS went into the schools.

The list of items FOCUS was able to purchase or supply for the schools is lengthy, from $10 for dance tapes at Carmel Middle School to $9,334 for a Reading Improvement program at Tularcitos School, with just about every kind of educational aid in between, from computers to dictionaries to repair of the track at Carmel High School.

FOCUS is getting ready to kick off a new school year and a new year of fundraising with a Family Night Benefit starting with dessert and beverages at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 5 at the Outdoor Forest Theater in Carmel. Following dessert there will be a performance of GroveMont's Robin Hood: The King Returns at 7:30 p.m. Warm dress is advised for the event.

Although it will be tough to top last year's act (new memberships via the Phone-A-Thon netted $20,000), FOCUS board members are enthusiastic about the coming year.

"We had a really fantastic fund-raising year last year," said Bette Hinton, FOCUS boardmember. "Around this time FOCUS usually celebrates its birthday. I guess this time we're celebrating the fact that FOCUS is still alive and well. Plus this time we wanted to have a family affair."

"We saw it as a good opportunity to make it a family affair," adds Donel Geisen, board president. "This year there's no real goal, but each year we get better and expand our base more. We have more long-range plans now, before we went from year to year."

•

FOCUS WAS was founded as a response to the severe budget cutting that came as a result of Proposition 13 tax initiative in 1979, Geisen said.

"The school district needed funds to pick up the slack for things they couldn't provide," he said. "But we're not involved in the 'brick and mortar' type things or the salary end of it. That's not our emphasis. We get the money directly to the teachers and the classroom to benefit the students."

A committee of board members decides where the money is to be disbursed, in areas of each school with the greatest need, books and instructional materials for Carmel High, for example, and personal computers for Tularcitos and River schools.

Money also went to such things as English composition prizes at Carmel High and makeup for a drama class at River School, things that often fall through the budgetary cracks these days.

Plans are not firmed up for some of the other fundraisers, but the enormously popular Hooker's Ball will be back again, as will the Phone-A-Thon. A "Come As You Were" costume party similar to last year's may also be in the works.

But for now the emphasis is on the kick-off event at the Forest Theater. Tickets are $25 for family, $10 for adults and $5 for children. Tickets can be purchased at the gate, at the CUSD office, and at either River or Tularcitos schools. For more information call Bette Hinton at 625-0934 or 646-6557.

Firefighters competition

Can Carmel Fire Department muster up a win?

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL RESIDENTS needn't worry about undue water consumption when the Carmel Fire Department hosts 12 other county fire departments at its Sixth Annual Muster on Oct. 4. Any event involving water will use liquid from one of the city's spring-fed wells.

With that worry out of the way, the muster, which begins at 11:30 a.m. with a parade down Ocean Avenue to Monte Verde and on to the Sunset Center where the event will be held, should provide lively competition for spectators.

The muster traditionally kicks off Fire Prevention Week, said Art Black, Carmel Fire Department spokesman. While this year the week lasts from Oct. 5 through 11, this changes each year as long as Oct. 9 is in the celebrated week.

"The ninth is the anniversary of the Great Chicago Fire which started in Mrs. O'Leary's barn," Black said. He added that, ironically, the Chicago City Fire Academy is now built directly where O'Leary's barn was located.

After the parade, which features fire apparatus from fire departments as far away as Castroville and Spreckles and an antique rig from Pacific Grove, the festivities will begin in the paved parking lot at Sunset Center.

The muster will consist of four events, which pit two departments against each other. Time is of the essence in these synchronized exploits.

The first competition is called "Make and Break." Here, two teams connect various sections of fire hose so it is watertight — knock over a traffic cone with spray from the hose — and break all the connections. The fastest team wins.

The "Hose Cart Race" involves two teams pulling antique hose carts a short distance. The Carmel Fire Department is readying themselves for this event by submerging the two large, spoked, red wheels from their department in water so they will expand and not become damaged in the race.

Always a favorite is the "Bucket Brigade" where two teams must work together by handing buckets filled with water down a single-file line and fill a 55-gallon drum.

The last competition is called "Water Polo." A cable is strung 12 feet above the parking lot with an aluminum "pony" keg attached to it. The two teams then face each other and begin spraying the keg. The first one to move the keg to the other teams side wins.

Black said last year, due to water shortage worries, the department only held the parade and then invited the public back for an open house at the fire house.

But this year, with the water coming from spring-fed wells, Black looks forward to strong competition. Team activities should last from about noon until 4:30 or 5 p.m., he said.

So if you hear sirens blaring at 11:30 a.m. on Oct. 4, you'll know the parade has begun. In fact, there will be no music during the display — it appears that sirens are music to firemen's ears.

THE BUCKET brigade always excites spectators as two teams race each other to try and fill a 55-gallon drum from buckets filled with water from the city's spring-fed wells.

County needs to approve five-year library contract

SOMETIMES RED tape rears it ugly head at the darndest times. It appears the recent reported signing of a contract between the Harrison Memorial Library and Monterey County was a little premature.

While the five-year, $100,000-plus contract will more than likely be renewed, the actual signatures of the board of supervisors have not been inked in yet.

"We're sure it's (contract) going through," said Barbara Winn, county librarian.

But, nevertheless, from the county library the contract goes to the board of supervisors for its approval or denial.

Meanwhile, Stefanie Pearce, senior library assistant at the Harrison Memorial Library, said that, upon reading the legal document, it was assumed the contract was valid. But what the library board of trustees actually did was approve the terms of the contract and return it to the county.

It was not known when the contract would be presented on the board of supervisors agenda for action.

LA Raider star big hit in Carmel's backfield

By DAVID LELAND

THERE IS something exciting about being around a "genuine superstar" that cannot be explained. But when football hero Greg Townsend descended upon Carmel Monday and Tuesday, no explaining was necessary — one could feel excitement in the air.

The Los Angeles Raiders defensive end came to Carmel as part of a Carmel Youth Center project aimed at bringing professional sports people to town in hopes of providing positive role models for the youngsters.

"It's nice just to have a person there," said third-year superstar Townsend. "It's a good feeling to do it now, 'cause that's what I was lacking when I was coming up."

Townsend flew to Carmel after football practice Monday afternoon and watched ABC's Monday Night Football with 63 youngsters (and about as many adults) at the youth center. On Tuesday, he led an assembly at Carmel Middle School, which showed highlights of the 1983 Super Bowl season for the Raiders.

Townsend said he was as impressed with the youngsters as they were of him.

"The kids were really into it (Monday night football)," he said. "They were asking good questions, that made me feel good. I'm into talking with them and visa-versa."

Townsend added that, while he was autographing pictures it was he who felt like a kid.

Working behind the scenes making this possible was former Raider publicist Mike Gilbert. Gilbert recently moved to the peninsula and is trying to establish a program that would make any town envious.

Among other things Gilbert is pushing for are a three-day football camp with professional athletes, having a group of Raiders play local high school football teams and bringing other professional sports figures to Carmel.

Now, Gilbert said, he and the youth center need some community support to provide funding for the proposed program.

"We've done what we said we would do (bring a professional football player)," he said. "Now they (the community) have to make some type of move."

Gilbert said the sports programs, if run correctly, could be self-supporting. He cited an example of charging non-Carmel residents $100 for the football camp and residents $50. He said there would be enough money from this to pay all the expenses, once the program was in gear.

"There's nobody doing this on the peninsula," said Jeff Bell, acting youth center director. "This will help us put a good element in the community."

•

AS THE children filed into the 1:30 p.m. assembly at Carmel Middle School on Tuesday, the noise level took on a fever pitch. Some yongsters cautiously approached No. 93 for an autograph, while others were content to keep their distance and stare at the 6-foot-4 star.

"This is good," said Sasha Kaufmann, 12. "Everybody's wild."

After a brief introduction on what the film was about, Townsend strode to the back of the room to watch his feats during the 1983 football season, which culminated with the Raiders defeating the Washington Redskins in the Super Bowl at Tampa Bay.

Smiles were pasted on most of the 100-plus students attending the assembly. But as Townsend's glory moments of his rookie year were shown, cheers and stomping broke out.

"This was my first year out of college," Townsend said after the film. "I'd never even been to a bowl game and here I was at the Super Bowl."

Perhaps the most dramatic moment on the film is where Townsend recovers a fumble against the Miami Dolphins on Monday Night Football and runs it back 66 yards for a touchdown.

During the cries and shouts of adulation from the school kids, Townsend appeared humble and relaxed.

Working with kids is nothing new, he said, having worked with the Special Olympics and youngsters in Los Angeles.

By the time the highlights had finished, Townsend had sacked Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway twice, much to the delight of the students.

A brief question and answer period brought the students' arms waving. The questions ranged from: "Will you win the Super Bowl this year?" ("Yes,") to "How much money do you earn?" ("Enough to pay my bills.")

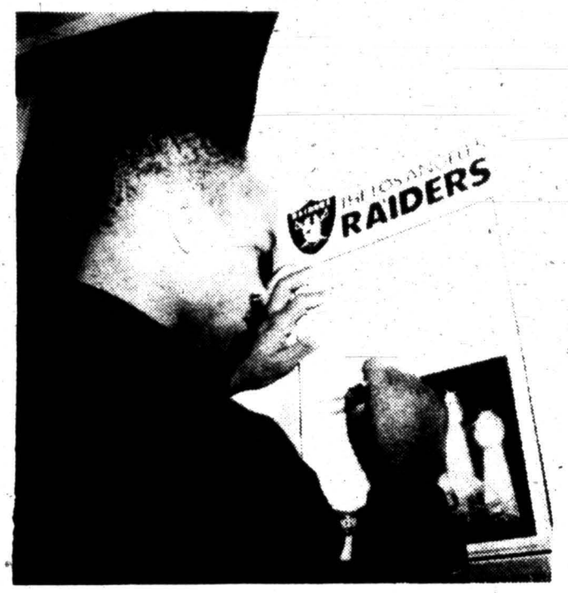
Townsend ended the session with more autograph signing.

Perhaps the experience can best be summed up by Danile Burkhart, 11. "I think he's a great player on and off the field," she said. "He's got a real nice attitude."

For Burkhart, who personally followed the '83 season, an appraisal of Townsend's talents is quite simple.

"I think he's as good as anybody in the NFL," she said.

CARMEL MIDDLE School was buzzing with the presence of Los Angeles Raiders star Greg Townsend on Tuesday. One of Townsend's biggest fans, Danile Burkhart, 11, seemed enchanted with the superstar defensive lineman.



ON MONDAY Los Angeles Raiders defensive lineman Greg Townsend came to the Carmel Youth Center to watch ABC's Monday Night Football with 63 youngsters. After the game, Townsend signed autographs and answered questions on pro football.

SAVE THE SAND-DUNES CAMPAIGN STARTED

The long discussed campaign to acquire the sand-dunes of Carmel has begun. These dunes have won world-wide fame through being pictured upon the canvasses of many of the noted artists of this country and Europe.

The sand-dunes, and also block 69, located at Ocean Avenue and Junipero street, have been offered to the city for the sum of $15,000, by the Carmel Development Company, and the low figure at which this real property is offered has been made possible through the efforts of Mr. J. F. Devendorf, who for years has desired the people of this city to have this property. Real estate agents have estimated the value of the dunes, alone, to be in the neighborhood of $40,000.

DRIVER'S AIM POOR SO JUDGE WOOD SUSPENDS SENTENCE

Returning home from Monterey early last Friday morning, George Turner amused himself by seeing how close he could come to the saw horses supporting red warning lights on Camino Del Monte, where the street crew had been working, without hitting them. His aim was poor, and he hit them all, damaging some of them beyond repair. In Judge Wood's city court he pleaded guilty to the charge of mischief, and promised to make good the damage. He received a 30-day suspended sentence.

BOARD DUMPS YOUTH CENTER AFTER 12 YEARS, FOUR TO ONE

For the first time since its founding 12 years ago, the Carmel Youth Center will get no financial help from the Carmel Unified School District this year.

Last night the school board passed a motion by Dr. Robert Newton denying the center request for $5,000. New board member Mrs. Herbert Blanks seconded Newton's motion and Clayton B. Neil, Jr., cast the sole dissenting vote.

Although no official reason for the radical change in policy was forthcoming from the full board, comments from individual board members seemed to indicate the reason for denial was: an ethical, if not legal, problem arises when public funds are handed over to a separately constituted organization not controlled by the school board.

DECISION DUE NOV. 1 IN SUIT AGAINST CITY

After two and a half days in court, the suit against the city by Carmel City Employees Association rests with the judge — but a decision may not be reached before Nov. 1.

The suit, which charges the Carmel City Council with failing to negotiate in good faith with city employees regarding wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment, was brought before Judge Leo A. Deegan of Riverside the morning of Sept. 22. Judge Deegan indicated he would hand down his decision on the matter no later than Nov. 1.

IMPACT OF FORT ORD CUTS

Reduction of Fort Ord from combat-ready to cadre status would produce a secondary, or "ripple" effect upon the economy of the Carmel-Carmel Valley area.

But the brunt of the economic impact from the elimination of some 10,000 personnel at the Army base would be felt most severely in communities such as Seaside and Marina.

CVPOA to discuss tree trimming

TREES TOP the agenda at the next meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board of directors meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, at St. Dunstan's Episcopal church in mid-Valley.

The subject will not be removing the eucalyptus trees bordering Carmel Valley Road and Boronda Road, but topping and trimming them. Residents say the trees form a traffic hazard to those driving both east and west on Carmel Valley Road and entering from Boronda. Previously the Monterey County Public Works Department had called for the eucalyptus' removal.

Ron Lundquist, traffic engineer for the public works department, will attend the CVPOA board meeting to listen to and discuss residents' ideas on trimming of the unruly trees. One of the suggestions to avoid trimming and slow down traffic at the junction is to install a four-way stop sign. This idea will be aired.

SOCIAL SCENE

BY MARGYE NESWITZ

Welcome to Social Scene

WELCOME TO the Carmel Pine Cone's new social column. I am delighted to be here to greet you each week, to fill you in on what is happening, and offer a juicy tidbit every now and then.

Let's face it, summer is usually a little on the lulling-and-dulling side. However, the gurus of glitz and glitter have been plotting to plim the fall social season to relieve the trauma of a summer in the sun (or the fog, depending on where you live).

The return of the B-Sharp Follies following a hiatus last year is good news, not only to the performers, but to the audiences who love them. New York Director David Wagaman made an immediate hit at the Director's Party and 150 folk oozing with talent are ready for the opening curtain of Just for Kicks Oct. 3 at Sunset Center.

Scads of exciting social times are just ahead. Artie Early has planned another spectacular Tablescapes for October. On the 17th there will be a Gala Preview in the Serra Ballroom, Monterey Conference Center, followed by two full days for viewing. Great hosts and hostesses have created stunning tabletop displays to benefit Hospice.

Santa Catalina School plans a Wine Tasting and Auction for Oct. 4 beginning at 4:30 p.m. David Armanasco will auction wine and other goodies such as: a cruise to Mexico, five days in Mondavi's Great Chef's Cooking School and two spring lambs. David is a great raconteur and should make that event a lot of fun.

There are 60th anniversary celebrations planned for the Carmel Music Society. For the Leontyne Price appearance there will be a gala with diamond door prizes on Oct. 7.

Oct. 18 the Monterey County Symphony Guild will hold a wine tasting called "A Taste of Gold" and a Fall Showcase Awards Night at the Monterey Sheraton. For each $100 donation to the symphony there is an entry for awards which include: a 1986 Mercedes sedan, a ranch mink coat, a Royal Viking Cruise and 1,496 concert tickets.

And the fall season holds much, much more.

THE SPORT OF KINGS

The beautiful people came from the north and from the south dressed in the latest fall fashions as a visual explanation of panache. Seated at tables by Collins Field that ate a luscious and lavish lunch as they watched professional kite flying, a parade of ponies, a carriage parade and the main attraction — the California Challenge Polo Match presented by Mercedes-Benz of North America. The South Team defeated The North Team in this classy event that benefited The Richard Collins Cancer Wellness Center and The Pebble Beach Foundation.

Polo has its roots in first century Persia as a training game for nobility. Those ancient polo fields and buildings in Iran are an awesome sight. The people in Pebble Beach were the awesome sight.

As Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood threw out the first ball, announcer Steve Muni said, "We are giving the mayor a change from riding horseback." It wasn't a horse, of course, but it was a "Morgan." Dominque List drove His Honor onto the field in a tiny green convertible 8-cyclinder Morgan-Plus.

Polo Match Director was John Walworth, president of the Pebble Beach Polo Club and Mrs. Richard Collins was in charge of the Polo Committee.

MPVS ANNUAL FALL TEA

There was no symbolic apron flying in the breeze to designate the place for the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services' Fall Tea as they have done on occasion. The apron, emblem of MPVS, represents solidarity and dedication to helping others. The fall tea, held in the Carmel home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Surtees, was one of the rare social gatherings for this group. Even so, the tea was not completely social — it served as a collection time and pep rally for the Silver Anniversary Fall Sale. Their big fall sale Oct. 18 at Monterey County Fairgrounds will raise money to benefit Gateway Center and Family Services Agency of Monterey.

The sun smiled on the patio garden as Tea Chairperson Peg Etherton and hostess Maydell Surtees greeted guests. Attending were Olga Scheffler, refreshment chair; Ben Heinrich, Family Service board member, and Fall Sale

SPINAL COLUMN (Advertisement)

OUCH! BACK PAIN!

Every year well over six million people are troubled by back pain. Every year a growing number of these back pain sufferers seek help from a doctor of chiropractic.

It really shouldn't be too surprising that so many people are finding that chiropractic gives them the fastest and most effective relief from back pain. Your chiropractor is more intensively and thoroughly trained in spinal troubles than any other specialist in any of the healing arts. To prove the point, a recent study compared similar subject matter taught in 85 medical schools and 11 chiropractic colleges. It was learned from the study that the students at the chiropractic schools spent appreciably more time studying six important subjects, including anatomy and physiology, than their counterparts learning medicine.

DR. BEACHAM

One of the interesting benefits many have found when they become chiropractic patients for back problems also improved.

Once you understand the basic make-up of the spine, you can easily see how this happens. The spine consists of 26 parts (vertebrae), 24 of which are movable. Running through "holes" in the vertebrae is the spinal cord, which is made up of many, many nerves whose job is to carry messages to and from the brain and various organs of the body.

Modern life is filled with potential hazards to the spine — fall, bumps, twists. Suddenly those nerves that reach out from between the vertebrae aren't sending the proper messages to their assigned organs and a health problem other than the back develops. And when the chiropractic restores the "offending" vertebra to its proper place, the condition starts to improve.

For back pains, a chiropractor is specially equipped to help you.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Bird lives!

W'VE BEEN told that Clint Eastwood has the script and will direct The Charlie Parker Story. How soon has not been divulged but you can rest assured it'll be a great one. The late saxophonist was the most revered musician of this time from jazz buff and music lover alike. Who is going to play the lead is another mystery...Billy Dee Williams would be perfect for the part. The last motion picture directed by Clint where he didn't appear in front of the camera was Breezy which starred the late Bill Holden. Clint did a superb directing job in that one.

DEL MONTE DISAPPOINTMENTS

What is happening at the Del Monte golf course? First Bob Howell, who has managed the golf course for 11 years, is fired, then Steve Watkins, assistant manager, quits after a six-year stint, and now we've learned that Katie Thompson, the buyer in the shop for the past five and a half years has given her notice. The "vibes" around there are not good at the present time. It's pretty hard to replace such competent help. Sometimes that is the case when big corporations take over a business...employees just become a number in the computer and the "human element" is gone.

KING OF THE LAUNDROMATS

The King family, which owns laundromats all over the peninsula, has recently opened another one...this one is located at 709 Lighthouse next to Brooks Ranch restaurant in Pacific Grove. Could they be starting a monopoly? I think they're cleaning up!

OUT OF CARMEL, INTO AFRICA

Margarite Alvarez and Judy Higgerson of Country Home Care will be journeying to Kenya in October as part of a seminar to check out nursing care and techniques in that part of the world. In addition, while they are there Judy and Margarite will be going on a safari, African style. You've go to hand it to these two progressive girls who literally take the bull by the horns whenever they have a project of any kind; and that's why they've been successful. Remember girls, no rhino horns and the like, and be sure you get all those shots before you leave. Have a great time!

CLUB CHAMP

Doug Dussenberry is the new club champ at Carmel Valley Ranch according to the word we've received by member Tom Handley. Doug defeated my dentist, Brad Carl, in a close match. Brad was leading with just a couple of holes to play when he ran into trouble and couldn't overcome the steady Dussenberry. Brad was medalist in the tourney. As Roger Maltbie told Brad in last year's Spalding, "work on your short game and you could make it on the tour." Brad should have an edge this year in the Spalding with his team because one round will be played at the Ranch.

ANY WAY TO MAKE A DOLLAR

Eddie "Juice" Johson, owner of Toots Lagoon in Carmel has come up with something new to enhance his income. He and a couple of friends have come out with a product called "Armsavers." Armsavers are little rubber discs the size of a penny in a little plaster container the size of a roll of Lifesavers and they are used to contain the shock when the tennis ball hits the racket. You secure the Armsavers in the center squares of the bottom cross strings. These little rubber discs are sure to improve one's game because when you hit the ball off-center, it'll still give a player a better feel of the racket. What are they going to think of next? Good luck Juice!

LA BOHEME

Dick Buxton and family seen at La Boheme Restaurant in Carmel a couple nights back, Dick is a financial advisor for First Capital Co. based in Larkspur and shortly he'll be moving his offices to San Francisco. He keeps things in the family, so to speak, employing his two talented children Julie and Jeff. Jeff recently held down the fort in their Hawaii office. And why do they come to Carmel so often? Because the like it! Also, Dick has a home in Carmel Valley.

FROM RAGS TO RICHES

The voice you hear on the cable channel is that of Ernie Batt, who formerly owned Howard's in Del Monte Center. Ernie got tired of that business, opened up a fur shop in Monterey, and now is voicing quite a few commercials on television, which he sells for the cable company. He loves the work and you can hear it in his voice. He's been a "ham" as long as I can remember from the old KRML days when he'd come to the radio station and record his own commercials with his daughter. I knew someday he'd become a media member.

See you next week!

CARMEL YOUTH CENTER

BY JEFF BELL

Raider Fever!

INCREDIBLE BUT true! When you come to the Carmel Youth Center expect the unexpected! Last Friday night Carmel Middle School students slugged it out on the ping-pong tables. Of course, these were the first ping-pong playoffs for cash prizes!

Zach Harrington took first place taking the $25 purse; Jon Nunemaker — second; Aimee Ferro — third; and Jason Moore — fourth. The action was fast and furious as the ball whizzed back and forth.

Dave Markowitz commenting on Zach's style: "This guy is one tough customer!" Don't worry Dave, he's not even in high school yet.

Sunday at 5 p.m. the Carmel Boosters Club made the scene with the complete videotape of last week's Carmel High versus Watsonville football game. Carmel of course won and congratulations to Josh Banks for having such a good game.

On Monday Night Los Angeles Raider lineman Greg Townsend came to town. The first place he stopped was the Carmel Youth Center. Seems he heard something about the "Best Hot Dog on the Planet!"

My thanks to the Carmel Booster Club for their help here that night. Also special thanks to La Playa Hotel and Christy Barrett, Katy of Katy's Cottage and all the parents who allowed the students to stay up late.

Roll out the barrel

IF AWARD-WINNING wines, gourmet food and a chance at a trip for two to Mexico or a week's use of a condo in Kona appeals to you, then the Fifth Annual Santa Catalina Wine Tasting and Auction is the place to be Saturday, Oct. 4.

Not only will the wine tasting and wine auction feature some of the area's award-winning wines, but several wineries are offering "barrel tastings," a rarity usually reserved to select few.

The auction itself will feature several wine "gems," including a bottle of 1923 Echezaux, a three-liter bottle of Robert Mondavi Cabernet Reserve, a jeroboam of 1964 Aloxe Corton produced from 1927 vines and one bottle of Remy Martin Louis XIII Cognac in Baccarat decanter.

Other auction items include the Mexico trip (from Simplex Tours), Kona condo, winter weekend at Northstar in Tahoe and a "Grand Epicurean Weekend" at the Monterey Plaza Hotel on Cannery Row for two couples that includes piano suites, meals at the Plaza's Delfino restaurant, champagne breakfast in bed (what other way is there to have breakfast?) candlelight dinner for for four in the suite, champagne brunch, etc. etc. a $3,000 value.

The fifth annual event, which begins at 4:30 p.m. with the wine tasting (22 wineries) until 7, with wine auction slated for 7-9 at Bertrand Hall at the school, is a benefit for the school's scholarship fund.

Co-chairmen of the event are Csaba Ajan, general manager of Monterey Plaza, and Bill Stahl of Stahl Motors. Winery chairs are Donna Adams and Lauri Hall. David Armanasco will serve as master of ceremonies and auctioneer.

Cost for the event is $25 per person and includes auction paddle, buffet (provided by Chef Robert Lopez of Carmel Mission Inn with food donated by Chatham Corp.) and wine tasting.

GETTING READY for the annual Santa Catalina Wine Tasting and Auction Saturday, Oct. 4 are (left to right) Bill Stahl, auction co-chair; David Armanasco, auctioneer; Donna Adams, winetasting co-chair; Csaba Ajan, auction co-chair; and Robert Chatham of Carmel Mission Inn, which will be supplying the food for the evening.

TYLER SERVED AS ARTS COUNCIL PANELIST

Recently, Richard Tyler, director of community and cultural activities for the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, served as a panelist for the California Arts Council. Decisions regarding grants for 1986-87 will be based on recommendations made by the panel's review of requests for funding.

The California Arts Council will meet in Sacramento Friday, Sept. 26 to decide on $6.1 million in grants to be made to more than 400 organizations throughout the state.

Juan Carrillo, manager of the Organizational Grants Programs, announced that the Arts Council reviewed 663 applications in the Artistic and Administrative Development category. Applicants requested $9.5 million; however, the budget for this category is $3.3 million.

Another 27 requests, for $4.3 million, were received from large budget (more than $1 million) organizations in the category of Support to Prominent Organizations; $2.8 million will be granted in this category. Early in the meeting the council will also approve panelists to recommend funding for the Multi-Cultural pilot projects in the State-Local Partnership Program. A budget of $60,000 is available to competing designated local arts councils. Applicants will develop six-month model programs to support multi-cultural artists and arts organizations at the local level.

The California Arts Council was established to promote artistic awareness and participation in California. It is a state agency which provides grants and technical assistance to artists and to non-profit arts organizations. Grant applications are reviewed and rated by outside peer panels and receive final approval from the 11-member council. 1986 marks the 10th anniversary of the California Arts Council.

CARMEL POLICE REPORT

BY OFFICER GREG LINDSEY

Crime Prevention Month

CALIFORNIA IS joining the National Crime Prevention Council in designating the month of October as National Crime Prevention Month. The Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department asks you to join us in a united effort to promote crime prevention in the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The week of Sept. 28 through Oct. 4 has been designated California Domestic Violence Awareness Week in order to provide an opportunity to increase public awareness of this serious problem. Domestic violence affects people of all ages, races and economic levels. It has been reported that nearly 20 percent of all homicides in America occur among family members. In 1982, California statistics revealed that approximately one-third of all female homicide victims were murdered by their spouses.

1985 marked the end of a four-year downward trend in crimes in California. Recent U.S. Department of Justice statistics show, however, that violent crime still affects 26 percent, or 22.8 million American households. Crime is a tragic reality for thousands of Californians, and the fear of crime continues to threaten the lives of millions more. Domestic violence is a crime, and immediate attention needs to be given to alleviate the tragic suffering plaguing families in which domestic violence occurs. Every effort must be made to protect the victims, help the offenders, and stop the cycle of violence.

Domestic violence has been a topic long overlooked in this country and in this state. Those of us who live and work in Carmel-by-the-Sea like to think that we are somehow protected from crimes of violence. Unfortunately this is an incorrect assumption, and we are just as vulnerable here as any other community. Domestic/family violence is one of the major areas of crime affecting the citizens of this state. The magnitude of this problem is demonstrated by some of the facts listed below.

- More than 1.7 million Americans a year face a spouse with a gun or a knife, and more than two million are battered by their spouses.

- A woman is battered every 17 seconds by her husband or partner.

- Twenty-five percent of all women who are beaten are pregnant.

- In one-half of all families where the female partner is battered, the children are battered as well.

- Abuse-related absenteeism results in an estimated economic loss to the country of three to five billion dollars per year, plus another $100 million in medical bills.

- Thirty-five to 40 percent of all assaults are related to domestic violence.

- Twenty-three percent of the deaths of law enforcement officers in the line of duty result from intervention by the police in incidents of domestic violence.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department investigates a considerable number of domestic violence incidents every year. The great majority of these incidents, however, remain unreported. There are a number of community service organizations available to assist victims of domestic or sexual violence.

The YWCA offers a 24-hour Domestic Violence crisis line at 372-6300, the Community Counseling Center offers a 24-hour family stress line at 373-4773, and the Rape Crisis Center offers assistance for victims of sexual assault dat 375-HELP.

If you are a victim of domestic violence, or know someone who is, we urge you to take advantage of the services available in the community. We also urge you to report incidents of domestic violence to the proper authorities. In the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea call the Police Department at 624-6403.

For the past six weeks, Wright has been participating in a demanding schedule of rehearsals for Up With People's musical production, "Beat of the Future." During the tour, she will be responsible for every aspect of the production from technical setup and strike, to costumes and advance promotion.

During their preparation for the tour, seminars were conducted by distinguished guests including Dr. Stephen H. Rhinesmith, coordinator of the President's U.S.-Soviet Exchange Initiative, who discussed the importance of open communication between nations.

Throughout the year, the students' participation in Up With People will earn them valuable career skills in marketing, counseling and guidance, and other fields. They will live with 80 different host families and participate in community service projects. During these activities, the students develop an awareness for the special needs of the handicapped, elderly and others they meet. This interaction leads to the development of a stronger sense of self-confidence in their own potential for understanding.

Wright, 24, attended the University of California at Davis. Cast C represents 131 students from 19 countries. Highlights of their tour include performing at the opening ceremonies of the World Cycling Championships in Colorado Springs, an appearance at the Navajo Fair in Window Rock, Ariz., the largest Native American fair in the country, as well as the British Columbia Lion's Club Telethon in Vancouver, Western Canada's largest telethon. Following the cast's semester break in December, they will tour Scandanavian and European countries.

Up With People is a nonprofit, educational organization of which the aim is to encourage understanding among people everywhere.

CANTREE DRIVE SETS GOAL

One-hundred thousand cans of food for the needy is the goal set for this year's second annual Christmas CanTree drive on the Monterey Peninsula.

Sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Boards of Realtors, the drive is a benefit for the Salvation Army and its ongoing program to feed the needy.

Last year, the initial drive by the Monterey Peninsula Board collected 15,000 cans. This year's drive will encompass the area from Marina to Carmel, and will involve such organizations as the Boy and Girl Scouts, service clubs, public and private schools, real estate offices, banks, savings and loan firms, title companies and many others.

A "Christmas CanTree Week" has been set for Dec. 6-13, during which a maximum effort will be made throughout the community to collect canned food.

On Saturday, Dec. 13, a "tree" will be constructed of canned foods at Friendly Plaza adjacent to Colton Hall in Monterey. The day-long event will feature music and entertainment, plus a short ceremony involving local public officials and other dignitaries.

After the tree has stood for a few hours, it will be disassembled and the cans taken by the Salvation Army to its storage center for distribution to needy peninsula families at Christmastime.

In a joint statement, President Tom Fleming of the Monterey Peninsula Board of Realtors and President Barbara Simmons of the Carmel Board of Realtors said:

"The members of our boards are enthusiastically behind the drive to collect food for our needy neighbors. We're appealing to the public for its enthusiastic support so we can reach our quota — 100,000 cans for the Salvation Army."

YORK SCHOOL ANNOUNCES MERIT SCHOLARS

The York School, an independent secondary school in Monterey, announced that 53 percent of its senior class has been honored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. BUSINESS BEAT
BY NANCY HILLS

Who's resigning?

APPARENTLY, NO one is sure.

Some, not all, of the Carmel Business Association board members received a note in the mail around Sept. 27 stating that CBA Executive Manager Lee Chamberlin and her assistant, Julia Felis, were resigning their positions with the CBA as of Dec. 1. The note was printed on a card embossed with Chamberlin's name.

The note stated: "This letter is to inform you that I am resigning as of December 1st from the Carmel Business Association. Julia Felis is also resigning as of this date.

"President Joan (DeMers) knows the sort of person with the skills needed to fill the Executive Secretary's position.

"We both thank the membership for their support. We have made many wonderful friends and we will miss them we are sure."

It was signed "LeeC."

DeMers said she had not picked up her mail and was informed of the note at a party Sunday night, and would not make a comment at this time.

However, it appears that Chamberlin is not resigning. When I asked her on Wednesday if she sent the note, she responded "All I'm saying is that I'm not resigning. I have no intention of leaving." On Tuesday, Chamberlin had said she had nothing to say about the matter.

After a couple of gatherings by a few board members, notably the executive committee, I was informed that Chamberlin indeed plans to stay.

CBA Vice President Fred Fozounmayeh said the rumor mill was at work, that Chamberlin never meant to resign. He also said he did not receive the note. Board member Clyde Sturges said "discussions have not been formalized because the full board has not met." Treasurer Florence Berrey said "it's all been settled and has worked out very well."

The full board of the CBA, which recently received funding from the city of Carmel, is scheduled to meet next week.

PERSONAL PERSONNEL

Chrystol Clark, a Carmel resident and former manager of the Marshall Group's Carmel office, has started her own personnel agency, headquartered on Mission Street in the offices above the Mediterranean Market.

The agency will have both temporary and permanent personnel, wrote Clark and three divisions: professional and executive, office and clerical, and temporary office staff.

The services have a special twist that should please employers.

"Our company offers employers a guarantee unmatched by any personnel firm in Monterey County," Clark wrote. "If a job applicant hired for a permanent position leaves an employer within 30 days of hire, we'll replace the employee or refund the entire fee."

In her 14 years of experience, Clark wrote she's "always been a hands-on manager, directly placing personnel and dealing with clients..."

Clark resides in Carmel with her husband, Monterey attorney John Clark.

NEW MARKETING

The Carmel Plaza has a new director of marketing — Judy Cole formerly of Monterey Life magazine. She will take the duties of advertising and public relations off the hands of Plaza manager Debbie Tiernan.

Cole said she hails from Southern California via Mammoth, has operated her own business and did marketing for Monterey Life as well as for a medical center at the ski resort.

She looks forward to the new stores coming into the Plaza, notably Laura Ashley and Banana Republic.

"It is becoming more upscale by having some of the nationals coming to us. It has generated a lot of excitement among the other shops and there's a lot of things happening at the Plaza. We want to make the community aware of them," she said.

JUDY COLE has recently taken over the duties of Marketing Director for Carmel Plaza shopping center.

BITS AND PIECES

New owner Jack Brushert has taken over operation of the Hacienda Restaurant on the corner of Fifth and Dolores. Brushert has already spruced up the interior of the Mexican eatery and has plans to change the menu and — get this — lower some of the prices...Ed Stitt has moved his Carmel Cutlery shop from its location of Lincoln to Dolores between Ocean and Sixth. More room, better location, he said. He is now next door to Paradise Mall

BY THE WAY

Paul Laub has not yet (as of this writing) filed an answer to the city's lawsuit asking for an accounting of his businesses in Paradise Mall on Ocean. The city claims it does not have any business licenses for Laub's operations in his building there — including the well-known Clintville store.

Laub maintains the suit is harassment and brought on by staff members from the former administration who are "out to embarass me and Clint (Eastwood)." Laub said he will "thrash" the city in court.

When asked if he was embarassed, Eastwood responded "No."

Eastwood comes out against Rose Bird

By DAVID LELAND

FOR MAYOR Clint Eastwood, attending a lecture involving crime victims boils down to a matter of conscience.

Eastwood said this was his primary thought in accepting an invitation to appear at a reception for Crime Victims for Court Reform next Wednesday, Oct. 8, at the Doubletree Inn in Monterey.

"I don't discount the rights of the accused," Eastwood said. "But the rights of the victims are important too."

The reception is being held by a group attempting to recall California Chief Justice Rose Bird and justices Cruz Reynoso and Joseph Grodin in the Nov. 4 election.

The group believes that the justices have been too lenient in overturning death penalty convictions.

Eastwood agrees. "Fifty-nine out of 59 is wrong," he said, referring to the number of death-penalty convictions overturned by the state Supreme Court.

Eastwood said he has done something that he believes many of the judges have not done. That is talk to the victims of crimes.

"It's hard to look into their eyes and not turn away," he said. "It's hard to turn them away."

Eastwood said he feels he is taking a "liberal" view to the situation by hearing all sides. But it appears he is definitely leaning towards the ousting of Bird.

The reception at the Doubletree, which is open to the public at no charge, is set for 6:30-8:30 p.m. Eastwood is not scheduled to speak at the gathering.

County planners to hold hearing on master plan EIR

NEXT WEDNESDAY, Oct. 8, the county planning commission will hold its second and final hearing on the controversial Environmental Impact Report on the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

At press time, the long-awaited EIR was still on route from a San Francisco-based consultant, Gloria Root Associates. The arrival had been delayed by "glitches," according to county staff planner Lynne Mounday.

"The reason it won't be available is a lot of effort has been made to answer the 57 letters (sent to the consultant)," Mounday said. "We will have a summary of issues concerning air, traffic, water supply and other controversial issues."

Mounday said the EIR is expected to arrive in Salinas today (Oct. 1).

The hearings will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, in the chambers of the board of supervisors at the county courthouse in Salinas.

Hot fun in the sun at Carmel Mission Fiesta

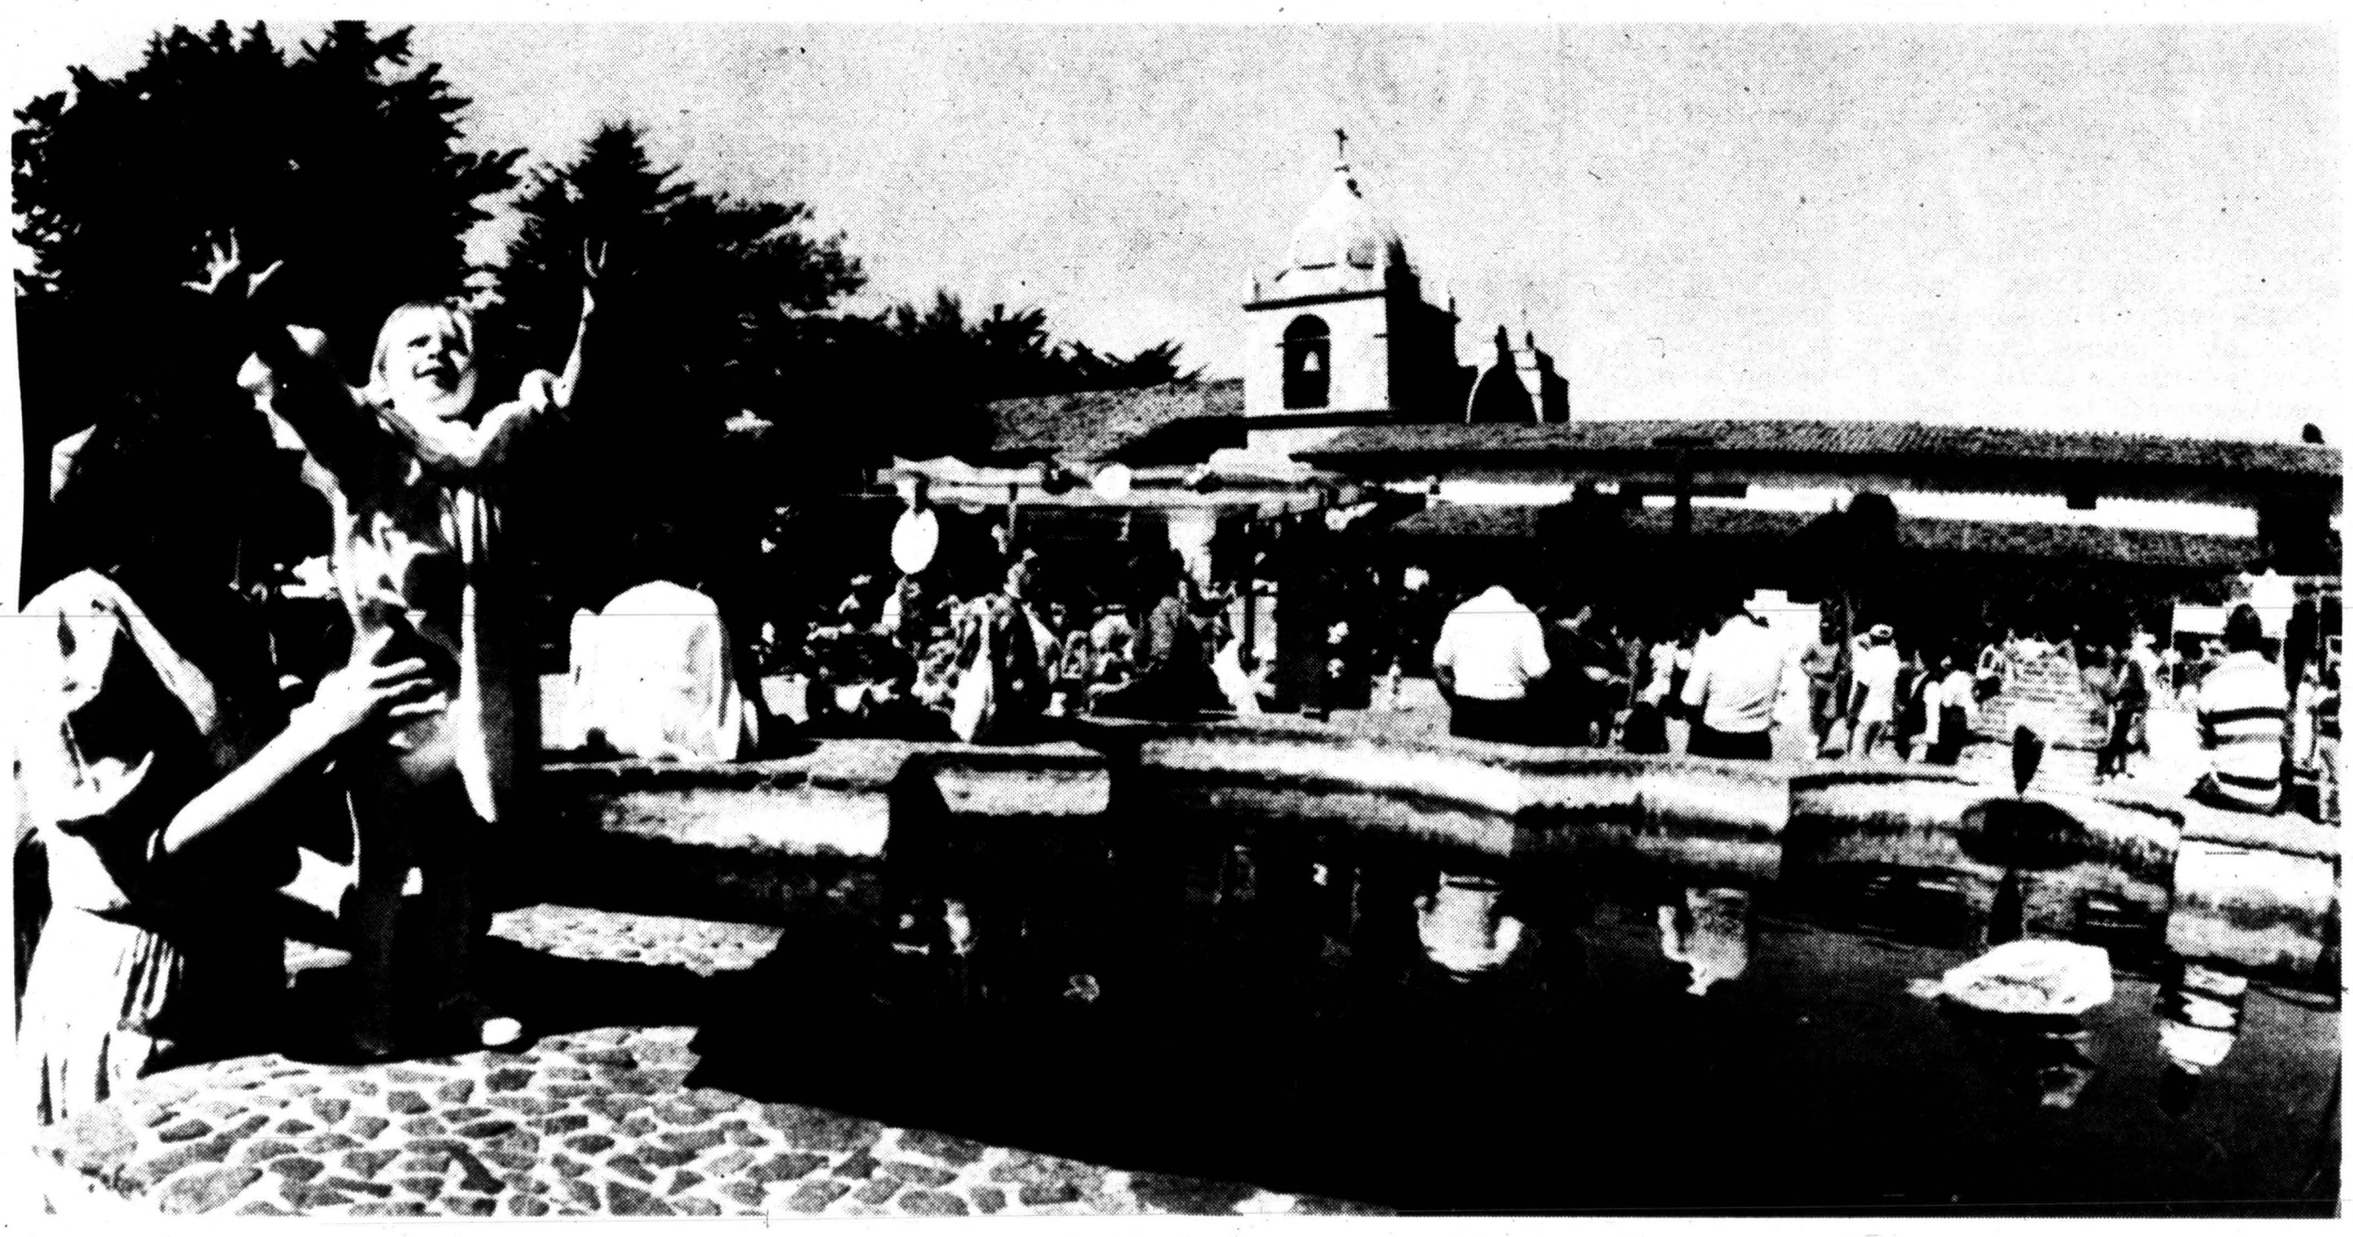
LANETTE, a face painter from Carmel, does a little touch-up on a cheeky ice cream cone on Seaside's Renee Park at Sunday's Mission Fiesta at the Carmel Mission. Long lines were found not only at the face painter, but the chicken barbecue during the festive event held under bright, sunny skies.



CATHLEEN NYSEWANDER of Pebble Beach waves at balloons flying overhead at the Carmel Mission Fiesta Sunday while her niece Chris Kitfield watches and hangs on. The fiesta, held on a hot, sunny day, attracted hundreds of people who enjoyed live entertainment from a mariachi band, a chicken barbecue, games, arts and crafts and several varieties of food, from tacos and burritos to hot dogs and cotton candy.

MAYOR CLINT EASTWOOD was on hand Sept. 20 at the Carmel Mission the week before the Fiesta to help celebrate the bicentennial of the 1786 French scientific expedition led by Jean-Francoise de Galaup, Compte de La Perouse. The French expedition, which spent 10 days on the peninsula, marked the first visit by any foreign power to the new Spanish territory of California.

Peninsula's oldest musical organization retains its devotion to high quality

By ANNE PAPINEAU

BEFORE THERE was the word superstar and when Carmel was still a village, the Carmel Music Society brought artists of superluminary stature to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"There is every reason to feel elated, and gratified, and hopeful" reported the Spotlight and Backstage columnist in the Dec. 16, 1927 edition of the Carmel Pine Cone.

The author's comments were penned in reference to the first Carmel Music Society concert, a performance by the Hart House Quartet in the Theatre of the Golden Bough on Ocean Avenue.

In the next 59 seasons, music society ticket holders witnessed performances by a "Who's Who" of 20th century greats drawn from the realms of music and dance. Some artists journeyed to Carmel at their peak. Other music society-sponsored talents, world famous today, were brought here in their developing years. And since 1976, the society has formally nurtured new talent via its annual competition for performers between the ages of 18 and 30.

"Carmel Music Society is like a road map. Everything branched off of it," observed Marcia Norris, current president of the nonprofit organization. The group predates other Monterey Peninsula musical institutions, including both symphonies, the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula and the Carmel Bach Festival.

"It is one of the oldest community musical organizations in the state," Norris added. "For years, someone had to literally die in order for a newcomer to get a season ticket. The society was the only musical group around of any quality."

The roster of artists that Carmel Music Society has brought to Carmel includes Vladimir Horowitz, Igor Stravinsky, Martha Graham, Jascha Heifetz, Artur Rubinstein, Rudolf Serkin, Isaac Stern, Andres Segovia, Marian Anderson, Vladimir Ashkenazy and Itzhak Perlman.

As part of its 1960-61 season, the society program featured soprano Leontyne Price. Shortly after her Carmel concert, Price made her Metropolitan Opera debut as Leonora in Il Trovatore. Price will return to Carmel for a recital on Tuesday, Oct. 7. Hers will be the first performance in a sold-out, five-concert season at Sunset Theater. There will be those in the audience at the opening of this, the 60th anniversary season for Carmel Music Society, who recall with fondness Price's last concert here.

"Everyone was just ecstatic, because this was her only West Coast appearance that year. We had a review from The San Francisco Chronicle," noted J.D. Clinton, a 30-year member of the Carmel Music Society. Clinton served as president of the music society from 1983 until June of this year, and he continues to serve on several of its committees. "We've always tried to attract the top quality, the top grade of artist because when we started it meant driving to San Francisco or Los Angeles if you wanted to hear anybody. A lot of people didn't want to or couldn't make the trip to San Francisco. It was expensive even in those days to travel and get overnight accommodations."

"Leontyne Price is wonderful," exclaimed Lee Crowe, a 50-year member and former officer in the music society. "I heard her also in Vienna."

During his half-century of membership in the Carmel Music Society, Lee Crowe has witnessed the proliferation of other local music organizations.

"I belong to them all, as a matter of fact. I think the music society brings the broadest spectrum of music. I don't know that it's changed too much over the years. It was about the first musical thing we had here — a dedicated group of people who really knew music. It's a group to be cherished and enjoyed," Crowe stated.

Ruth Cooke, a nonagenarian who divides her time between Carmel and running her book store in San Francisco, remembers when the Carmel Music Society was founded in 1927.

"You know Carmel wasn't like it is today," Cooke observed. "There were about 600 people who lived here the year 'round. I wouldn't have gone to the Carmel Music Society concerts if I didn't think they were tops. They were all high-quality, presented by people who really knew music. It was a wonderful time."

•

CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY was launched under the guiding hands of Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous, who also helped found the Carmel Bach Festival. According to latter-day newspaper reports, a group of about 20 music lovers organized for the purpose of "bringing to the peninsula music that is represented by the most significant programs and artists the world is offering today."

TOR HOUSE ON Carmel Point will be open to the public Sunday, Oct. 5 as part of the eighth annual Robinson Jeffers Tor House Festival. The weekend event will embrace activities for both Jeffers scholars and informal aficionados of the poet's life and work. (Holly McFarland photo).

Eighth annual Tor House Festival set

Jeffers' works lauded at his home

THE POETRY of Robinson Jeffers will be celebrated on his home turf during the eighth annual Robinson Jeffers Tor House Festival, set Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 4-5.

Festival highlights include tours of Jeffers' home on Carmel Point, a reading by Dame Judith Anderson, seminars presented by Jeffers' scholars and a poetry walk and picnic at Stewart's Beach.

The series of seminars opens Saturday, Oct. 4 with continental breakfast served at the site of these workshops: Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley. During the 9 to 10 a.m. breakfast, participants can meet the workshop speakers. The $10 admission fee for the first seminar includes continental breakfast.

Both seminars will feature three speakers who will give short statements. Each seminar will then break into three groups for approximately one hour of discussion. A summary concludes each seminar.

The first seminar, conducted 10 a.m. to noon, will feature Alex Vardamis on "Jeffers' Reputation Among His Peers;" David Morris on "Jeffers' Concept of the Wilderness and Environment" and James Karman and Mary Hedin on "Important People, Places and Things in Jeffers' Life." Jean Grace will present the summary.

Admission is also $10 to seminar two, presented 1:30 to 3 p.m. This will feature Robb Kafka on "The Young Jeffers and His Poetry," Robert Zaller on "Literary Roots and Jeffers" and Robert Brophy on "Teaching Jeffers."

Tickets to the seminars and other by admission events can be reserved throught the Tor House office, 624-1813. On Saturday the festival office will be at the Hacienda Carmel. Tickets may be purchased at that time beginning at 9 a.m. Hacienda Carmel is located two miles east of Highway 1 off Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley.

The festival will move to Tor House and its gardens from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Saturday, where a reception is scheduled for participants.

Dame Judith Anderson is scheduled to read from Robinson Jeffers' letters during the festival dinner. The dinner will begin with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 at Hacienda Carmel. Albert Gelpi, chaiman of the Department of English at Stanford University will speak on "Themes in Modern Poetry."

Tickets to the Tor House reception and the dinner at Hacienda Carmel are $35.

Free events inaugurate the Sunday festival activities. Readings from Jeffers' works will punctuate the poetry walk, which will begin at 9 a.m. at the Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. This moderate-to-easy walk, led by Beth Wright and John Dotson, will follow Mission Trail to Stewart's Beach.

The poetry walk can be combined with the beach picnic, which will start at approximately noon at Stewart's Beach on the south side of Carmel Point. This event, also free, will include readings of Jeffers' poetry. Participants should bring their own food and beverage.

Tours of Tor House, the home Jeffers built on Carmel Point, will be conducted noon to 4 p.m. Tour tickets are $7, and can be purchased at Tor House. To get to Tor House, travel west on Ocean Avenue to Scenic Drive. Turn left (south) on Scenic for approximately one mile to Stewart Way. Turr left on Stewart Way and travel for one block. Carmel Music Society celebrates 60th anniversary

The first Carmel Music Society president was Mrs. Edward A. Kleugel.

Then and now it has proven no small task for a Carmel organization to draw top-ranked artists.

As J.D. Clinton pointed out, "I think in this age of the jet plane, more and more top artists are coming to the West Coast. Thirty years ago it required most likely a train trip. When an artist came to the West Coast, it was 10 days of travel for them. Now we have people who fly into California from Europe to perform with us. For example, (violinist) Uto Ughi flew in from Italy, performed in Dallas, performed in Carmel, then flew to Tokyo to perform.

"Artists' fees have gone up. Anyone with a name in the international music world has a fee. We never get a reduction on the fee, even though we have a small house. For our little 733-seat (Sunset) auditorium, we pay the same price the San Francisco Symphony pays for their 2,500-seat auditorium."

Clinton credited the generosity of music society sponsors for "holding our season ticket prices down. We try to cater to our Carmel residents who are on limited or fixed incomes."

Current president Marcia Norris said that Carmel Music Society enters its 60th season with approximately 700 members.

"The tremendous response to Leontyne Price shows there is a thirst for special music here," Norris added. "I have thought that if 14 people were willing to commit $5,000 every other year to the music society, we could annually provide a concert year like this one."

The 60th anniversary season will continue with a Jan. 17, 1987 concert by the grand prize winner of the 1986 piano competition sponsored by CMS. Misha and Cipa Dichter, duo-pianists, will perform Wednesday, Feb. 11; baritone Hermann Prey will appear Friday, March 6 and Carter Brey, cellist, will perform Thursday, April 9.

Bob Abinante, a former music society board member whose father, Leonard, also served on the board, recalled a music society-sponsored concert given by Hermann Prey years ago.

"It was sort of a singular event of a lifetime as far as artistry was concerned," Abinante said. "It was the essence of the experience of music. It was an indescribable experience. He gave a concert beyond belief. I'm looking forward to not only the Price concert coming up, but also Hermann Prey's."

Abinante said that he has long counted the Carmel Music Society concerts among his most cherished memories.

"I think probably my earliest impression of them was going into Sunset Theater when I was maybe 7 or 8, and I remember sort of hearing the concerts," he recalled. "I don't think I made too much noise. I'd always bring some drawing paper, and somehow the music stuck in my mind."

A vital force in the Carmel Music Society for most of its existence has been Carmel music teacher Angie Machado, a former CMS president and board member.

"I remember as a high school kid my sister and I used to come over here for concerts at the Golden Bough. The seats were made of wicker and if they were playing something soft you didn't dare breathe because you'd hear the creak of the wicker," she recalled.

As an educator, Machado reserves special pride for the Carmel Music Society Competition. In addition to $2,500 cash, the competition awards its grand prize winner a concert date the following CMS season. Contestants must be residents of California, or full-time students here. They must be no younger than 18 nor have reached their 31st birthday at the time of the competition.

The next competition will take place March 21, 1987 and will be open to instrumentalists other than pianists. A vocal competition will be sponsored in 1988, and pianists will compete in 1989.

"We worked very hard to start the competition," Machado said. "Very often the winners are boosted in their careers, and it helps their resume very much."

J.D. Clinton listed some past competition participants who received their early recognition from Carmel Music Society.

"Soprano Ruth Goldstein, who won in 1979, is now singing with the City Opera of New York," he said. "1977 winner Neil Rutman, pianist, has gone on to world acclaim. The young woman who was second last year in our vocal competition, Jacqueline Wehmoff, will be making her debut at the Met this fall."

Carmel Music Society President Marcia Norris described the group as "one of the true aspects of Carmel's unique character. Basically it has represented an uncompromising sense of artistic integrity. As the local music community has grown in diversity, we try to complement one another. I feel so privileged to help continue what the music society represents — the artistic quality and beauty which has been sought always by Carmel."

Thomas Vincent Cator wrote with uncanny insight in the Dec. 16, 1927 Pine Cone, "This first concert of the newly formed Carmel Music Society was an auspicious beginning and seemed to presage much good for the future."

The "Friends" is a group of people who find mutual support while enlarging their knowledge of Jung's insights.

Silly Wizard to perform music of Scotland at MPC

TECHNICAL VIRTUOSITY distinguishes Silly Wizard, a band from Edinburgh, Scotland. Silly Wizard will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 4 at the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall.

RADIO STATION KAZU presents Scotland's premier traditional band, Silly Wizard, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 4 at the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall. The band features Andy Stewart on vocals, Phil Cunningham on accordian, John Cunningham on fiddle, Gordon Jones on guitar and Martin Hadden on bass. With original and traditional music, they blend technical virtuosity, Celtic humor and heartwrenching ballads.

The band was formed in 1972, and the present lineup have been playing together (except for a four-year hiatus by fiddler John Cunningham) since 1976. In that time they have developed into amusical force renowned not only in their native Scotland, but also in the remainder of the British Isles, Western Europe, the United States and Canada.

This Edinburgh-based quintet has managed over the years to combine the power and drive one might find in a rock band with the majesty and magic of Scotland's vast heritage of music to form what Leslie Berman of The Village Voice called "the best marriage of traditional and modern music." Using instruments as diverse as penny whistle, piano accordian, synthesizer and electric bass, Silly Wizard produce a sound which Ken Roseman of Folk Roots describes as "not only brilliant instrumentally and vocally but (which has) a special magic which sets them apart."

Tickets are $8 in advance and $9 at the door. Tickets can be purchased at the Bookworks in Pacific Grove, Recycled Records in New Montery, Do Re Mi Music at the Barnyard in Carmel, and Center Stage Ticketing on Alvarado in Monterey.

Annual airshow arrives in Salinas

PRECISION FLIGHT and aerial derring-do are the order of the weekend when the Sixth Annual California International Airshow takes to Salinas skies Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 4-5.

The Canadian Snowbirds nine-jet precision military aerobatic team stars in this year's show, just one week before their Expo '86 performance in Vancouver. The Snowbirds, flying CT-114 Tutor jets, alternate between solo and formation routines above and at the crowd's eye-level.

Also from Canada are the Ray Ban Gold Aerobatic Team, the only four-pilot civilian aerobatic team in North America. Flying black and gold "Pitts Special" biplanes, this team specializes in inverted flying and precision team-aerobatics.

Inverted flying is enough of a challenge for most pilots but Craig Hosking has taken it a step further. Hosking will perform an aerobatic comedy routine in his talking helicopter, "Otto."

Seven-time U.S. Aerobatic Champion Leo Loudenslager returns this year with a new act — performing aerobatic routines in the Bud Light Microjet. Twelve feet long, four feet high and weighing just 432 pounds, it's the world's smallest jet.

Airshow legend Bob Hoover also returns this year. Hoover flies two separate aerobatic acts, one in his own highly modified P-51 Mustang, another in a standard-production Shrike Commander twin-engine business/utility airplane.

Julie Clark, a Republic Airlines captain, will appear in the only professional solo T-34 military aircraft performance in the country. Her polished-aluminum T-34, painted like "Air Force One" stands out even more in Clark's graceful aerobatic ballet.

Back by popular demand is Bret Willat, performing aerobatics in his sailplane. The silent grace of his maneuvers is emphasized by decorative smoke trailing from his wings, marking the sailplane's track.

Another popular act returning from last year is the U.S. Army Golden Knights Parachute Team. These World Champion jumpers perform precision freefall maneuvers marked by red smoke trails. The act ends with controlled landings on targets in front of the airshow crowds.

The California International Airshow's primary goal is to raise money for charity. As a fundraiser, it is the most successful airshow in the world, having contributed $1.5 million to over 200 charitable organizations in its first five years. Hundreds of local volunteers make it all possible.

Airshow gates will open at 8 a.m. with continuous entertainment and static displays at the Salinas Municipal Airport. The show begins at noon. Tickets will be available at Bass and Ticketron or by mail-order. General admission is $6 in advance, $8 at the gate. Grandstand seats are $9 in advance, $12 at the gate. Children 6 to 12 are admitted for $3 in advance, $4 at the gate. For information call the Airshow office at 754-1983.

'Shanghai Shadows' focuses on modern China

"Shanghai Shadows," a look at China's free speech movement and the clash of styles and values as capitalism meets communism in China, will be screened at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 3, in the parish hall at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Dolores and Ninth, Carmel.

The 60-minute color film, in English, includes the first screening of a criminal trial in China, an interview with the editor of a Communist Party newspaper, Buddhist and Protestant religious services, dissidents and townspeople in their homes.

This report by an award-winning KRON-TV documentary unit is the result of seven weeks of filming on location in Shanghai.

The screening is sponsored by All Saints' Outreach Ministries for the All Saints' International Film Series. A donation is requested. Refreshments will follow the film.

Follies, a musical by James Goldman and Stephen Sondheim, continues at The Wharf Theater in Monterey. Directed by Larry Ayo, Follies is a celebration of the present that confronts the past. The musical builds upon the reunion of two former Follies showgirls and their husbands, each a former stage door johnny. Their party chatter gives way to deeper reflection and confrontation with personal, self-deluding "follies."

Follies will be staged at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays through Nov. 16. Tickets are $10 and $8. The theater is on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Reservations: 372-2882.

Lung association outlines non-smokers' rights

Clean air in restaurants is becoming the rule, rather than the exception in California, as the evidence mounts against passive, or second-hand smoke.

If smoking in restaurants continues to bother you, as it does many people, the American Lung Association offers inoffensive ways to let the restaurant know that second-hand smoke is not a proper side-dish to serve with meals.

The association has available a "Guide to Restaurants with Non-smoking Sections" for both Monterey and Santa Cruz County residents which lists those "clean air" restaurants and what proportion of the restaurant is designated for non-smokers.

Also available from the Lung Association is a sheet of stickers on which two messages are printed — one thanking the restaurant for providing a non-smoking section and another asking that a section be provided.

To obtain the guide and stickers, call the American Lung Association at 425-0336 (Santa Curz) or 757-5864 (Monterey County), or write to 140 Central Ave., Salinas, CA 93901.

THEATER REVIEW
BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Wharf Theater stages demanding 'Follies'

MONTEREY'S WHARF Theater has pulled out all the stops for a revival of Follies, James Goldman and Stephen Sondheim's 1971 hit musical. With a cast of 27 (scaled down from the original production's 100), Follies remains a big show for the Wharf. It's a complex show, too, with many multiple actions. These are well orchestrated by director/designer Larry Ayo.

Follies takes place in a dilapidated, once-stately theater on the eve of its demolition. Assembled on the turf of their youthful careers is a gaggle of aging, retired chorus girls, some of their mates, and their impresario emeritus, who has called them all together to say goodbye to their era.

Needless to say, the party has a melancholy, twilight zoned quality; under the circumstances, that's to be expec ted. But things get worse. For this nostalgic event impels the central characters back to the feeling and hopes of their youth. And a tangled web it is, too.

Years and years ago, Phyllis (Gina Welch) and Sally (LaVonne Rae Andrews) married their stage door Johnnies, Ben Stone (Les Knight) and Buddy Plummer (Bill Houle), respectively. All four turn up at the party, Sally to confront her lifelong obsession with Ben, Ben to find some meaning in a life gone stale, despite great political success and his continuing marriage to Phyllis. Buddy has his own problems. Sally's preoccupation with a fantasy lover has left him free to philander. Yet he is oddly tied to Sally, despite a fulfulling extra-marital affair.

During the course of the evening, these characters, backed by their youthful counterparts, ransack the past, at first clinging to romantic memories, then stripping away layers of self-deception, to confront the way things really were. In the process, they each hit bottom and they come away, if not enriched, at least informed.

Do the late middle-aged typically live in false dreams of their youth and find their present lives stale, flat, and unprofitable? Follies posits that they do. Rescuing this show from the merely maudlin is the crisp psychological insight of Goldman's script and the vitality of some of its characters. But the overall effect is faintly depressing.

Musically, I was left with the impression of a competent score, but not a single song haunts my memory. Gina Welch's "Story of Lucy and Jessie" is splendidly sassy. "The God-Why-Don't-You-Love-Me Blues," a complicated, fast-paced number sung by Bill Houle and danced by Nelia Morago, Shannon Anderson and Robert Basgall, is clever and effective. Diana Benson's "Broadway Baby" is a comic high spot, and Carlotta Campion's "I'm Still Here," a survivor's catalogue of events and escapades, is delivered with pleasing aplomb.

There are 23 songs in this show and only two rough spots. One is "You're Gonna Love Tomorrow," in which Young Phyllis (Jennifer Gingerich) has problems staying on pitch. The other is "One More Kiss," a duet sung by Heidi Schiller (Joan McIninch) and Young Heidi (Carla Balk), which careens into shrillness and stays there.

Dancewise, Laura Akard's choreography makes the most of a small dance area to evoke the characters' youthful emotions. But one sequence, a dance interlude conveying Buddy's inner turmoil ("The Right Girl"), seems a purple patch, too intensely balletic for the rest of the show.

Barney Hulse's musical direction and piano accompaniment underscore this demanding show very well; and Paul Cain's lighting ties it all together.

The Wharf is offering a special performance of Follies at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 16 to benefit the Family Resource Center of Monterey County. To make reservations for this performance, call 372-2882 or 372-1373.

Nostalgic moment

ART NOTES
BY SAM COLBURN

How does it look?

ONE OF OUR commonly used expressions is "How does it look?" This refers to physical appearance, or to a situation. I am not concerned with the latter, but only with the first as this is an aesthetic judgment. For instance that gray and pink eminence, known as the Monterey Sheraton, is disturbing in looks, not only to me but to anybody else whose opinion I ask. I get the same reaction regarding Glen Heights which is a collection of condominiums stuffed into a ravine off of Highway 68. Obviously both of these developments had to be approved by the planning commissions, and the city councils of Monterey and Pacific Grove respectively.

The centers of our great cities are composed of skyscrapers that reach for the heavens. According to Ayn Rand this is testimony to the soaring spirit of man. It is closer to the truth to say that it is important to make as much money as possible per square foot of ground. This driving imperative is certainly one reason why the great cities abroad are more charming than ours.

As the main gallery at the Pacific Grove Art Center is closed for alterations, the current shows are confined to the hallways and the Elmarie Dyke gallery. The walls in the halls are well suited for the display of the work of Mimi La Plant. She is showing monotypes plus one mixed media, and one painting with ink. These prints are all non-objective, or, if she has started with subject matter, I cannot discern what it is. Her shapes are geometric. The color is, for the most part, muted, and its range is subtle and interesting. The forms stay pretty much on one plane, and are contained with line. I was reminded of the painting of Lionel Feininger. Her shapes are enlivened by curved lines. It is as though she realized that her universe was too ordered so now and then an election splits off and zooms into space.

Rob Gischer is showing in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery. He uses photographs in these works. In some pieces he paints on them, and, in others, they seem to hang free. He attains some interesting graphic images which exist on two or three planes. I got this effect in particular from "Reflections on Magritte." There is a sense of objects floating in space. Gischer is actually a master of representational painting. This shows particularly in "Increments." There is a piece of free floating string. Behind that, and horizontal to it, is a twig which is also suspended in some strange ether, but definitely inside a rectangular aperture. In "Excavations of Past Events" there are leaves and grass. There is a hole in this vegetation which leads the eye to a grove of trees. All of these works are surreal but the painting relates to some early American masters of Still Life.

UPSTAIRS AT the southwest corner of Dolores and Fifth in Carmel, the Landell Galleries are host to an exhibit called "Collaboration." These are abstract paintings by Brian Niebauer and Yin Ling. Niebauer has developed a technique using wax to build impasto. His oils have brilliance of color which seems to exceed that of the medium on canvas. He also uses the space in a way that says this part of the picture is quiet and the other part is busy. It is in the latter area that hot colors are used against cold. The paint is very bright against the muted area. In "Self Portrait" there is great depth due not only to the raised surfaces, but also the range of pigmentation.

His buttermilk pastels are flowing and poetic flower studies. Again in these works may I say that the space is well used. It is difficult to postulate his motives or drives as the imagery is so different from the one medium to the other.

Yin Ling is the other half of the collaboration. Her imagery is very gentle, and quite removed from traditional Chinese. Many of the pieces are small with a black line against pastel that tells the story. It is a profound simplicity of line, but it carries the message. Many of the drawings are of animals. One is called "Kicking Man." There is no doubt he is a man, and what a kick. The very large painting is entitled "Music." The work has mystery. It is luminous and the movement is suggestive to me of the ocean. "Creation" is a long, narrow pastel which again tells of natural forces at work. These pieces are not easy to describe but feeling is there and so is a subtle form. "The Wave" is a drawing in black ink. It is not easy to do this just with line. Yin Ling is devoted to nature.

OVER IN the Beardsley Room of the Carmel Art Association Reed Farrington is presenting a one man "horse show." This is fine, loose painting in oil. So often in drawings or paintings of animals the depiction is very tight. All the muscles and bones are there, but there is no action. With Reed there is movement. Horses are upended, bucking or, even if the animals are just standing, there is the insinuation of life. In "Lickety-Split" the body has a form resulting from a technique that seems related to a watercolor wash. In "Teen Angel" he has gotten the stiff-legged soaring motion of the bucking bronco. Will James was an early Western cowboy artist, and in his drawings of horses he got action also.

As a painting I liked "The Express" best. It is more abstract, but the color builds intriguing form.

Asian art authority to speak

Robert Skiles, authority on Asian art, will present an orientation lecture on the "Essence of India" exhibition at 4 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 2 in the Coburn Gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

The lecture, which is open free to the public, is in preparation for MPMA's tour to San Francisco on Wednesday, Oct. 15 to view the "Essence of India" exhibition at the Asian Art Museum.

This is the only American showing of the exhibition which has come directly from the Grand Palais in Paris. It climaxes the Nationwide Festival of India, an 18-month collaborative effort between the governments of India and the United States.

Major Indian Hindu, Buddhist and Jainist works of art rarely seen in the West are included in 200 sculptures and paintings arranged in nine richly colored galleries.

The Oct. 15 tour will also include a visit to the Palace of the Legion of Honor, which is currently featuring "Nijinska: A Dancer's Legacy."

Sculpture, fiberworks shown in Marjorie Evans Gallery

"Transitions," an exhibit of sculpture and fiberworks by Eleen Auvil, will be featured in the Marjorie Evans Gallery at Carmel's Sunset Center through Oct. 30. Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and during scheduled evening performances at the Sunset Theater.

The artist is a member of the Carmel Art Association and currently maintains her studio and home in Corral de Tierra surrounded by the source of her inspiration — nature. Expressing her "inner landscapes" are several white woven hangings inspired by Japanese scrolls and accentuated with darkly pigmented hand-dyed rice paper backdrops.

"Experiencing Flight" is a wall-mounted quarted employing the artist's woven fiber over welded metal armatures to create three-dimensional abstracted forms that soar across an entire wall.

"Contained Circles" is her eight-foot hanging of wools, rope and linen while "Journey" eludes its framed format with woolen wrapped ropes coursing from the two dimensional weaving. Auvil's 8½ foot "The Graeae" (translated "the old one") is a totem-like "pre-person" figure that is at once both ominous and humorous.

Another dimension of the exhibit are the artist's small bronze cast sculptures of personalities she observes in people and birds. The interpretations incorporate the artist's senses of design, texture and humor. Auvil's diverse background in architecture, interior design, music, ceramic, sculpture and textiles is evident in this collection representative of her repertoire of mediums and dimensions.

OIL PAINTINGS BY award-winning Carmel artist Gail Factor will be featured at the Robert Louis Stevenson School Gallery in Pebble Beach. A reception is planned Friday, Oct. 3. For details, call 624-1257.

Gail Factor's 'Roadworks' focuses on rural imagery

RURAL IMAGERY in oil is the theme of "Roadworks," an exhibit of paintings by Gail Factor that will open with a Friday, Oct. 3 reception at the Robert Louis Stevenson School Gallery in Pebble Beach.

Factor studied art at the University of Southern California with Edgar Ewing and Keith Crown. She was elected to membership in the National Fine Arts Fraternity.

In 1963 Yale University awarded the artist a fellowship in fine arts, and after completing the Norfolk Connecticut Session she went to Europe for one year pursuing an independent travel/study program in art and architecture.

After returning to California, Factor graduated cum laude from USC, earning a bachelor of fine arts degree with a major in painting. She received the Francis de'Erdely Award for excellence in life drawing.

In 1983 she moved to Carmel, where she paints and participates in life drawing and other art workshops on the Monterey Peninsula.

The artist recently received an honorable mention in the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History Competition, and has had works displayed at the Monterey County Fair.

The exhibit will continue through Nov. 6. For additional information, call 624-1257.

Carmel Foundation shows works by fiber artist

Works by fiber artist, weaver and sculptress Eloise Iverson will be featured throughout October in the Carmel Foundation activities building, Lincoln Street and Eighth Avenue, Carmel.

A sense of humor permeates Iverson's work. She incorporates antique objects from the Old West with natural items in her works. A weaver for more than two decades, she has received several awards, including first prizes from the Northern California Handweavers conference, Monterey County Fair, Tahoe Ehrman Mansion Arts Festival and at the Lodi Art Center.

The artist is a member of the Carmel Craft Weavers Guild, Salinas Valley Arts Association, Art Unlimited and the Valley Art Gallery.

Cultures clash at Monterey museum

STUNNINGLY PRESENTED yet humorous watercolors and prints by artist Masami Teraoka will be on display in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Asian Gallery through Nov. 30.

For more than a decade Teraoka's art has presented an episodic tale of two cultures. He has adapted the fragile style of watercolor to the 19th century Japanese tradition of ukiyo-e woodblock prints; no one has so cleverly presented the clash of modern American and traditional Japanese cultures. Earlier works reveal Baskin Robbins Ice Cream and McDonald's hamburgers worked into idyllic oriental scenes; recent work is more subtle, with contemporary occidental props placed alongside of mellower water images. In the style of Japan's Edo period prints, Teraoka presents social turbulence and fleeting pleasures, with humor and tongue-in-cheek commentary at the cultural collison.

His art evolved from his move to the United States from his native Japan in 1961, with the attendant confusion that accompanies an unfamiliar country and new traditions conflicting with his native, known experiences. Ironically, it was through Americans that he learned to appreciate Japanese culture.

"I grew up with ukiyo-e paintings and was fascinated with them, but I didn't know they were a unique cultural development until I came here," Teraoka said. "When I learned that, it convinced me to work with that vocabulary. Now my style is set, but I'm still refining . . . concept-wise, I can expand more, and that's my future."

Taraoka's work is presented at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through the courtesy of Space Gallery, Los Angeles, and several private lenders.

AN HISTORIC exhibition of works by writer, painter and critic Eugen Neuhaus continues in the Coburn Gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Sunday, Oct. 5.

Professor Neuhaus had a diversified life as a teacher of the theory and practice of art, as a writer on aesthetics and technique, and as a painter. The discipline and control evident in his painting stems from his early training, yet there is a certain conflict within his work between the intuitive laying on of the paint in nature studies and the intellectual sense of design in his studio works. His more finished works are bold in design, with foliage rendered as broad, flat decorative areas of color, freely painted, but almost mural-like in effect.

Neuhaus was born in Germany and graduated from the Royal Art School at Kassel and the Royal Institute for Applied Arts in Berlin. He taught at the Municipal Art School in Berlin and, after having moved to the United States, taught at a number of schools, including the California School of Design (1907-1909) and the University of California, Berkeley (1908-1949) where he served as the first chairman of the art department.

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is located at 559 Pacific St. in Monterey, across from Colton Hall, and is open to the public free of charge from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday. For information, call the museum at 372-7591 or 372-5477.

DUANE ALT

True freshness, an unlabored breath of life is visible in Duane Alt's impressionsit paintings. His exuberant style was done on location on the Cote d'Azua, from Cannes to Monte Carlo, as well as Italy's Portofino, Santa Marcherita, and Rapallo. The living, luminous moment of his work is based on a solid background in traditional impressionism from years of study at the Sorbonne and the Ecole Des Beaux Arts. His exhibit at Zantman Art Galleries provides a large and varied selection of his beautiful artwork, ranging in size from 18x24 to 40x60 inches.

ELEEN AUVIL OF Salinas created this multi-media wall sculpture, "Experiencing Flight No. 1." The bird-like form is composed of welded steel and is covered with handwoven sheer fabric and pulled raw silk in natural shades. The sculpture is part of a multi-media art exhibit featured this month at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

Boston photographer wins Ruttenberg Fellowship

DERRIL BAZZY of Boston, Mass. is the recipient of the 1986 Ruttenberg Fellowship awarded by the Friends of Photography.

The project proposal for which the fellowhsip was presented deals with the photographic portrayal of Central American refugees. The $2,000 award, which was initiated with a grant from the Ruttenberg Arts Foundation headed by Chicago attorney David C. Ruttenberg, has been presented annually since 1982 to support completion of a specific photographic project and to assist in the professional and artistic growth of the recipient.

'His concern for the refugees and their tremendous problems is clearly shown in his photographs. It is a very warm and human experience to look at all his images. I was profoundly touched.'

Bazzy's proposal outlined his return to the Central American refugee camps to complete his documentation of the refugees and their struggle to maintain dignity. He has served in these camps for the past three-and-one-half years as a relief worker. During that time, his photography played a secondary role, but the Ruttenberg Fellowship will allow him to devote 12 weeks solely to completing a segment of his photographic report on the refugees.

Bazzy holds an undergraduate degree in architecture from the University of Florida, where he studied photography under Jerry Uelsmann and Doug Prince. He attended graduate school, also with a major in architecture, at Virginia Tech from 1976 to 1980, one year of which he taught photography full time.

Bazzy did not pursue a career in architecture but continued following his interest in photography. In 1983 he established the relief agency AYUDA while working with Guatemalan refugees in Mexico. In 1985 he won the Fitzgerald award for photojournalism for his photo-essays of the refugee camps. He has been employed as a freelance photographer for the Christian Science Monitor and other publications.

The juror for the 1986 Ruttenberg Fellowship was Ruth Bernhard, of San Francisco. Bernhard was born in Germany in 1905 and studied at the Berlin Academy of Art for two years. She began her career in commercial photography in New York in 1930 and by 1936 had opened a studio in Hollywood, yet she always found time for her personal photography. She moved to San Francisco, where she found an ideal studio and a creative atmosphere, in the mid-'50s. Now 81 years old, she remains active and enthusiastic as both a photographer and an educator.

Bernhard said of the 15 finalists' photographs, "I had the opportunity and the pleasure to look at the work of very thoughtful and sensitive photographers. The person whose work I have chosen from among the many worthwhile entries has, for me, made the most successful fusion between a significant project and photographic artistry. His concern for the refugees and their tremendous problems is clearly shown in his photographs. It is a very warm and human experience to look at all his images. I was profoundly touched."

Previous fellowships have been awarded to Tom Millea (1982), Jim Goldberg (1983), Robert Dawson (1984) and Barbara Bosworth (1985). In addition to the Ruttenberg Fellowship, The Friends of Photography's grants and awards program includes the Ferguson Grant and the Peer Awards in Creative Photography.

DERRILL BAZZY, winner of The Friends of Photography 1986 Ruttenberg Fellowship, captured this image, Honduras, on silver print.

Newly pulled prints reflect images two centuries old

AN EXHIBITION OF 46 color engravings of plants gathered on the first voyage of Captain Cook can be viewed through Oct. 26 at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History, Forest and Central avenues, Pacific Grove. The exhibit is titled "A Flowering of Science: Plants from Captain Cook's First Voyage: 1768-1800."

The exhibition has been created and produced by the British Museum (Natural History) and Alecto Historical Editions. It is being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES).

In 1768, Captain James Cook began the first of a series of voyages. The first voyage of exploration and discovery, aboard the ship "Endeavor," was organized to observe the transit of Venus from the island of Tahiti and to find the mysterious "Terra Australis Incognita" — the continent of Australia, whose existence had been speculated for many years.

Not only did Cook locate Australia, but the voyagers of the Endeavor found an abundance of new species of plants and animals. Among these explorers was the young Joseph Banks, a Royal Society botanist eager to record the natural history of the new land. Banks and his colleague Danniel Carl Solander collected some 3,600 different species and more than 30,000 individual specimens during the voyage from the islands of Tierra del Fuego, Tahiti, New Zealand, Australia, New Guinea and Java. The specimens were sent to the British Museum.

In England, Banks hired master engravers to make plates from the drawings by botanical artist Sydney Parkinson. Parkinson had completed 269 drawings before he died, a victim of malaria aboard the ship. He had begun nearly 950 drawings which were subsequently completed by other artists.

For about 200 years these drawings and their plates were stored in the British Museum. Black and white proofs had been made but had never been published. Alecto Historical Editions, with the cooperation of the British Museum, is now making color prints from these plates for the first time.

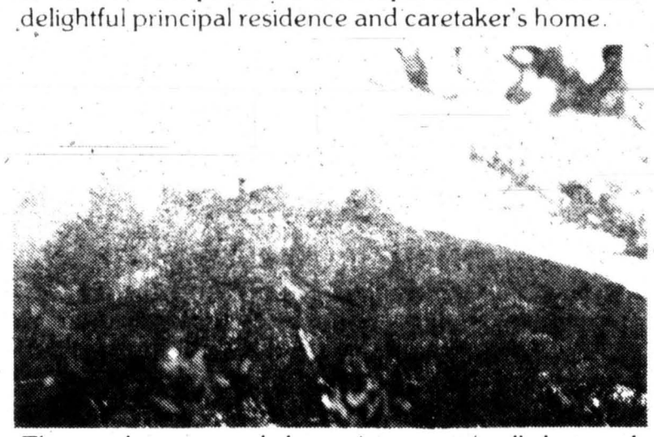
PFEIFFER POINT on the BIG SUR COASTLINE

Pfeiffer Point, a famous landmark on our Pacific Coastline, projects between Sycamore Canyon, leading west to exciting Pfeiffer Beach, at upper right in above photo, and Wreck Beach, on its south. In pioneer days, much travel to Big Sur was accomplished by coastal ships outloading passengers by small boats to Pfeiffer Beach. Persons then travelled inland via Sycamore Canyon. Off Wreck Beach, often many fishing and sailing boats anchor in the lee of Pfeiffer Point. This rare Big Sur retreat rests along its crest, and comprises an imcomparable 19 acres with delightful principal residence and caretaker's home.



The residence, rough hewn/compact/well designed, rests on a small mesa over 500' above sea level, overlooking a portion of Los Padres National Forest, surrounding Pfeiffe. Beach. Pleasant decks, the hot tub commanding a 70 mile view down the coast, cypress groves, lawns and gardens, all add to an exciting Big Sur lifestyle. Below, and to the south, is the caretaker's home (or guest house) reached by a separate road, affording seclusion to both residences.

The main residence comprises 800 square feet, including a living room, kitchen, bedroom, bath and sleeping loft. The massive raised hearth, stone fireplace is the focal point of the living room, providing cheerful warmth. The caretaker home, also of about 800 sq. ft. has a living room, kitchen and bath on the first floor; the sleeping loft above opens onto the living area below. A huge stone fireplace rises in the center of the house. Both structures are well served with utilities and access roads.

This remarkable property enjoys one of the most spectacular settings along the entire western edge of our continent. Its location on Pfeiffer Point, pictured near center of above photo, overlooks the two Pfeiffer Beaches and is readily accessible to the heart of Big Sur and the Scenic Highway. Please call Robert Adams or Linda Mazet in our Coast Properties Division for further details.
